Man Gives D.C. Bomb Scare

Jetliner Victims Warned Before Everglades Crash

Investigators Expect Long Job At Scene

43 Persons Die In Aircraft Chicago-Bound

By JAMES K. CAZALAS
United Press International

MIAMI (UPI) — The position of the body of a stewardess indicated Wednesday there was some advance warning before a Chicago-bound jetliner plunged into the Everglades Tuesday, carrying 43 persons to their death.

The stewardess was found with her crossed arms still clutching a pillow to her chest — a standard survival technique.

Broke In Flight

There were signs the plane first started to break up in flight either from an explosion or violent weather — before it finally dropped into the semi-tropical wilderness.

Charles Collar, chief CAB investigator at the crash scene, said authorities spent the day just trying to organize evidence, and hadn't made any conclusions about the cause.

"We'll be here for days," Collar said. He said his men, along with representatives of the airline, plane and engine manufacturers, and the pilots' and other unions assigned to the investigation, had divided into seven teams to look into vairous factors such as structures, engine operation, and other technical aspects.

Collar noted that "just about everything fell off" the huge jetliner, but would not speculate on any cause.

However, a Coast Guard helicopter pilot working at the scene, Lt. Ellis Ward, said that in his opinion the plane "definitely came apart prior to impact with the surface."

There were many tell-tale signs to bear out this opinion:

—Nowhere in the marshy wilds was there any furrow indicating the pilot had attempted any sort of an emergency landing.

—Wreckage was scattered over an area of two square miles.

—No piece more than 10-feet long could be found of the big wings that once supported the 100-ton jet.

The plane, Northwest Orient Airline's Flight 705 bound nonstop to Chicago, dropped from radio and radar contact at 1:42 p.m. EST Tuesday, just seven minutes after it took off into a violent squall line.

Area Was Cloudy

It was raining at the time and a cover of black clouds hovered at 800 feet. Tornado warnings had been posted for the area earlier in the day.

A helicopter pilot spotted the wreckage of the plane five hours after it crashed, but it was morning before most investigators could reach the remote area.

What they found was a jig-saw of debris and death.

The major piece of the fuselage lay crumped like a cigar that had been crushed under foot and a set of landing wheels stuck up grotesquely from the marshy turf.

Bodies of at least 19 persons were thrown clear of the wreckage and, strangely, they dented the soft earth in a way that would indicate the plane was eastward when it hit — although the plane was headed westward when it took off.

The bodies not thrown clear were still strapped to their seats.

Valentine's Valentine

It's only a make-believe valentine Pammy Colburn is shoving toward the mail box, but you can bet a pretty girl like two-and-one-half year old Pammy mails and receives plenty of the real thing, particularly when she lives in a town named Valentine. The "valentine" she's posing with is intended to display the special cachet imprinted on envelopes mailed from Valentine, Neb., in connection with Valentine's Day. Thousands of letters are sent to this Nebraska town for the special Valentine postmark and cachet. Pammy's valentine is addressed to Loveland, Colo., another popular postmark on Valentine's Day.

Cooper Orbit Delayed Three Months

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Astronaut Leroy Gordon Cooper Jr. has passage booked aboard the next U.S. manned flight leaving for space—but he will have to wait another three months for the transportation.

The latest delay was announced Wednesday.

When it does get underway, the voyage will be the most ambitious ever attempted by an American. The slender astronaut hopes to circle earth 22 times in 34 hours — about 600,000 miles from start to finish.

But Cooper's ticket is getting a bit frayed at the edges. The flight originally was set for late last year. Now, the Federal Space Agency says, it has been delayed until mid-May at the earliest.

It could wind up closer to mid-June.

Thus from the standpoint of waiting time, Cooper is no closer to his journey into space than he was a month ago, when the departure date was a tentative April 2.

But the new delays are for the astronaut's own good, the experts say. The engineers are at work building a little more safety into the Atlas booster rocket.

UN Pushes Farm Aid For Cuba

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The United Nations is going ahead with an agricultural aid program for Cuba despite repeated U.S. protests, the United States disclosed today.

A statement issued here and at the State Department in Washington expressed regret that the U.N. Special Fund and the U.N. Food and Agricultural Organization had determined to proceed with the project.

Informed sources said the five-year project to build a $3-million agricultural experimental station would be carried out in stages, but the United States said it objected to the plans "even on a tentative basis."

Under the plan, the U.N. Special Fund would provide $1.15 million of the total cost.

U.S. sources said "We understand that no United States dollars will be used in the project."

They explained that they expected the project would be carried out by experts from Communist countries or others who would take their pay in nondollar currencies.

Philippine Hero Ill

MANILA, (UPI)—Gen. Emilio Emilio Aguinaldo, 93, who led the Philippine revolution at the end of the 19th century, was reported in "very serious" condition Wednesday in the Veterans Memorial Hospital. A hospital spokesman said Aguinaldo has been suffering "paroxysmal attacks due to high blood pressure."

West Berlin Students Vote On Dueling Societies

BERLIN (UPI) — West Berlin University students took time out Wednesday from academic activities to vote on whether to abolish old-fashioned dueling societies.

The balloting among 15,000 students enrolled at the free university will take three days. They actually are voting on whether to confirm or reject a law student as president of the student council.

But the student, Eberhard Diepgen, 21, also is a member of the Saravia Dueling Club.

He was named student council president by the 73-member student parliament, but the group's presidium voided the result as "incompatible with the university's traditions." The action apparently was taken because of Diepgen's membership in the dueling club and the election was ordered.

The issue is whether the university, founded 15 years ago in opposition to the Communist-dominated Humboldt University in East Berlin, should carry on the German tradition of dueling corps.

The practice was outlawed by the Western Allies after World War II, but the tradition went underground and was revived officially after German sovereignty was granted in 1955.

Membership in the old crops was like belonging to a top fraternity in the United States. The criss-cross facial scars accumulated in saber-chopping duels were, and still are, an entry to the best positions in the German business world.

The election results will be interpreted here as an indication of the path modern German youth is taking.

A number of Germans and many foreigners consider dueling societies a symbol of the type of extreme nationalism that led to two world wars.

U. S. Seeks Withdrawal Of Red Force

Rusk Says Presence In Cuba Is Danger

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Wednesday that Soviet troops remaining in Cuba "do not insure the peace of Cuba but poison the atmosphere and increase the dangers."

Renewing U.S. notice to Moscow and Havana that the United States wants the Soviet forces withdrawn, Rusk said, "the sooner this source of potential trouble is eliminated the better for everyone concerned."

Sets No Deadline

However, Rusk set no deadline. And he warned that any action to free Cuba from communism must take into account the dangers and responsibilities involved in international actions in a nuclear age.

Rusk called in Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin in Washington last Saturday to stress a new U.S. interest in getting Russians out of Cuba.

He said Wednesday that both sides fully understand that the armed forces of the United States and its Latin-American neighbors will make sure that arms in Cuba will not be used outside the Caribbean island.

As for the Soviet military personnel remaining in Cuba, estimated at around 17,000, he repeated his past position that, "We in the Western Hemisphere can not accept as normal any Soviet military presence in this hemisphere."

"The authorities in Moscow and Havana," he said, "must recognize that Soviet military armaments in Cuba do not insure the peace of Cuba but poison the atmosphere and increase the dangers.

"Cuba will not become a base for offensive military operations against other countries of this hemisphere for the simple reason that it will not be permitted to play that role.

Subversion Met

"Communist subversion in Latin America, whether connected with Cuba or not, is being met by the individual and joint actions of the American states."

Rusk made no direct reference to Republican calls for a tougher anti-Castro policy. But he noted that Moscow-linked Fidel Castro regime took over during the 1950s—when Republican President Dwight D. Eisenhower was in power.

Since the United States and its hemisphere allies failed to prevent the establishment of a Communist regime in Cuba then, he said they "now face the more difficult problem of finding a cure."

"Great risks must be accepted to meet great threats, but issues affecting the life and death of nations must be treated with the sober responsibility exhibited by President Kennedy last fall," he added.

British Labor Will Choose New Leader

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's Socialists Thursday choose the man who will succeed the late Hugh Gaitskell as party leader and who will be the nation's prime minister if Labor wins the next general elections.

Labor's 249 members of Parliament eligible to ballot ended voting Wednesday night in preparation for the House of Commons meeting Thursday at which the result will be announced.

Political commentators hesitated to predict whether the party's foreign affairs spokesman Harold Wilson or acting party leader George Brown would win.

Wilson had been carrying a slight edge in pre-election forecasts because in first round balloting he received 115 votes to Brown's 88.

But Brown's slashing attack on Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in the House of Commons when he concluded the Socialist argument in a Common Market debate Tuesday night brought fresh doubts of a Wilson landslide among some political experts who had been predicting it.

Reynolds, Ex-Senator, Dies In N.C.

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Robert Rice Reynolds, a colorful and controversial politician who served two terms in the U.S. Senate, died of cancer Wednesday night at his Asheville home. He was 78.

Known to thousands in North Carolina as "Our Bob," Reynolds served from 1933 to 1945 in the Senate. He then retired from the political scene until 1950 when he was beaten in the Democratic primary for U.S. Senate.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Reynolds, who married 19-year-old Evalyn McLean in 1941, is survived by a daughter, Mamie Spears. Evalyn McLean Reynolds, the last of the senator's five wives, died in 1946. She was a daughter of Evalyn Walsh McLean, who owned the famed Hope diamond.

During his 12 years in the Senate, Reynolds became one of the most glamorous and controversial politicians ever to hit the nation's capital.

He founded the American Nationalist party, an outgrowth of another of his organizations, the Vindicators, both dedicated to "100 per cent Americanism."

Although often labeled an isolationist, Reynolds continued to his death to insist this was an untrue description.

"There never was such an animal as an isolationist," he said in an interview last year. "I was never an isolationist."

Although a visitor of international society's best-known drawing rooms, Reynolds always made it clear that he was a U.S. nationalist, which he defined as one who thought more of his country than any other country and placed its interests ahead of any other.

Through his last years, the Asheville senator was an ardent foe of the U.S. foreign aid policy.

600 Refugees Leave Cuba

HAVANA (UPI)—An estimated 600 Cuban refugees left Wednesday night for Port Everglades, Fla., and freedom aboard the American freighter Santo Cerro.

The Red Cross charter ship left Havana harbor for the overnight voyage at 7:14 p.m., EST.

The 5,000-ton ship, third American vessel to sail into Havana with ransom supplies, will transport only a little more than half the number of refugees brought to the United States by previous steamers because of its smaller size.

The Santo Cerro arrived last Sunday with an estimated $2 million in foodstuffs and medical equipment and supplies. Its cargo brought to around $30 million the total of ransom goods so far supplied the Castro regime of the $53 million total agrede upon for the release of some 1,300 invasion prisoners.

American Red Cross and Cuban authorities moved swiftly to load the Santo Cerro. A Red Cross-operated plane arrived in Havana earlier Wednesday from Miami with a medical team, cots and blankets.

The cots and blankets were for use of the refugee passengers and the eight nurses who will look after the comfort on the 12-hour trip.

Disillusioned Africans Riot In Sofia

By HANS BENEDICT

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—African students disillusioned with life under communism clashed with Communist police on the main street of Sofia, Bulgaria, informed sources reported Wednesday.

The Bulgarian government confirmed Tuesday's outbreak through its official news agency BTA. Reports from reliable sources said 200 African students were involved and scores of them were injured.

BTA said only 40 or 50 students were involved, adding: "A number of demonstrators were arrested, but released later."

BTA, which said all other reports were "in contrast with the truth," gave this account:

—Africans protesting a government ban on African students' organizations in Bulgaria gathered on Sofia's Lenin Boulevard. The students did not heed warnings from the militia that their demonstration would be illegal and a violation of public order.

—Some students, obviously excited, started an argument with the militiamen. This made it necessary for a number of them to be arrested, but they were released on the same day.

BTA also reported that several Africans were ordered out of Bulgaria for "gross violation of public order and for abuse of the hospitality rendered to them."

The agency said students were told that, "When forming a new organization the established law in this country ought to be observed." But BTA did not say how an African students union would have violated the law.

LONDON (UPI) — London Marriage Bureau Director Heather Jenner said Wednesday the Anglo-French marriage market has been shattered by President Charles de Gaulle's veto of British Common Market membership.

De Gaulle Soft Pedals Dispute

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle moved Wednesday to soft-pedal France's dispute with Britain in a possible prelude to a reconciliation with London following the bitter rift over the veto of Britain's Common Market membership bid.

French sources said De Gaulle may be preparing to offer Britain associate membership in the Common Market or propose some sort of "bridge" between the Common Market and the "outer seven" trade group led by Britain.

Government sources said De Gaulle personally ordered a complete clampdown on statements by French officials on the Common Market issue.

A foreign affairs debate in the National Assembly was called off as was an expected statement by Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville.

Information Minister Alain Peyrefitte canceled an interview on the Common Market crisis he was to have recorded for the Canadian Broadcasting Company.

The usual detailed summary of the foreign affairs report given Couve de Murville to the cabinet Wednesday morning was omitted.

Peyrefitte merely told newsmen Couve de Murville had mentioned the Common Market among a number of other issues. He refused to be drawn out further on this.

Officials said De Gaulle believes the furor touched off by his Jan. 14 news conference and his torpedoing of the Brussels Common Market talks already is beginning to cool down.

Sino-Soviet Alliance Marks 13th Anniversary

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union marked the 13th anniversary of its alliance with Red China Wednesday night by reminding Peking that its security is buttressed by Soviet nuclear power.

An article on Thursday's anniversary in the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said "the great might" of the Soviet armed forces protects the security of China as well as that of the Soviet Union.

Izvestia, however, ignored the current ideological dispute between the two countries in keeping with what appears to be a milder Kremlin line toward Red China. This follows Premier Nikita Khrushchev's call for a moratorium on polemics between the two Communist giants.

Significantly absent from the Peking meeting were three of Red China's top leaders — Communist Party chief Mao Tse-Tung, Premier Chou En-lai and President Liu Shao-chi.

But Chang Chih-siang, acting head of the Sino-Soviet Friendship Association, obviously spoke for the Peking leaders when he told the meeting: "In order th safeguard and strengthen the friendliness and unity between the Chinese and Soviet people we must hold aloft the banner of Marxism-Leninism.")

Justice Building Is Target

Demands To See J. Edgar Hoover About 'Evidence'

By GARDNER L. BRIDGE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Historic Pennsylvania Avenue was thrown into an uproar during the noon hour Wednesday by a man who drove his automobile up the Justice Department steps and threatened to blow up the building.

Routed by tear gas after a two-hour siege, during which he demanded an audience with FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, Nathan Wise, 33, was taken to a psychiatric ward for observation. He had no bomb.

Relatives in Phoenix, Ariz., where he was connected with a department store, said Wise cracked up about a year ago after his father's death and had been under psychiatric treatment.

"He Needs Help"

"He's sick. He needs help," said Joan Wise, his wife.

The building he chose for the most exciting lunch hour drama downtown Washington has seen in years is one of the big stone government edifices that line the south side of Pennsylvania Avenue, midway between the Capitol and the White House.

It contains the offices of Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and the national headquarters and crime detecting laboratories of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The attorney general was out of town, but Hoover was in his fifth-floor office when a light-colored two-door sedan with Arizona license plates suddenly veered across the sidewalk and came to rest halfway up the steps of the building's main entrance.

Wise got out from behind the wheel and crawled under the car, trailing a pair of wires and a small metal valise. In the car were several five-gallon cans which appeared to be connected to the other end of the wires.

Police and fire department emergency equipment quickly surrounded the area and all traffic along the avenue was halted at both ends of the block-long building.

"He's under there now, lying under the car," police Inspector J. S. Hughes said.

"He said he's going to stay there until he sees Mr. Hoover."

More police cars arrived, coming in swiftly but silently under radioed orders not to alarm the man with their sirens.

"We don't know if it's a bomb or not," Hughes told reporters, "but we aren't taking any chances."

Ropes were stretched across the adjoining streets and the area was

Lord Home Backs NATO

LONDON (AP)—Foreign Secretary Lord Home declared today that whatever critics may say, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization "is the framework within which the defense of Europe must be organized."

Without mentioning President Charles de Gaulle of France by name, Home told the House of Lords: "On that we are quite clear. Britain will play as full a part as we possibly can."

Home spoke at the start of a House of Lords debate on defense policy including agreements that were reached with the United States at Nassau on a multinational nuclear force for NATO.

"NATO is an alliance of sovereign states," he told the lords.

"No member country is asked to surrender its right to defend its own interest outside the alliance should it feel necessary to do so."

Some British critics of the Nassau agreements have contended that they reduce Britain to the role of a U.S. satellite—a view also voiced by De Gaulle.

Fire Kills Five Persons

NEWARK, N. J. (UPI) —A fire which officials believe may have been set by an arsonist swept through a crowded brownstone tenement Wednesday, killing five persons and injuring 16 others.

One woman, her clothing in flames, jumped to her death on the pavement outside the building, and knocked a fireman off a ladder as she fell. He was injured.

Fire Chief John Redden said the fire was the third in the building during the past year, and the two previous fires involved arson.

Millionaire Convicted Of Mail Fraud

BALTIMORE (AP)—Stewart B. Hopps of San Francisco was convicted of mail fraud Wednesday in U.S. District Court.

Chief District Judge Roszel C. Thomsen deferred sentence, pending motions for a new trial.

A jury of seven women and five men returned the guilty verdict shortly after 4 p.m., after deliberating four hours.

Hopps took the verdict calmly. "Thank heaven for appeal," he said as he left the courtroom.

The 63-year-old millionaire insurance executive was accused in a federal indictment of mailing to Maryland false financial information on International Guaranty and Insurance Co. of Tangier, Morocco. He had pleaded innocent.

Hopps was convicted on both counts of the indictment—one for each of two mailings of a brochure of Maryland. One went to the state insurance commissioner, the other to the Baltimore Better Business Bureau.

The maximum penalty possible would be five years imprisonment and a $5,000 fine on each of the two counts.

The jury asked to see exhibits in the case four times during its deliberations, which began at 11:20 a.m. and ended at 4:10 p.m., with 50 minutes out for lunch.

There were 15 days of testimony and one day for final arguments in the trial which began Jan. 21.

The government contended Hopps controlled International Guaranty and that the firm had fraudulent assets when it sought to insure Maryland savings and loan deposits.

At one point in the trial, U.S. Atty. Joseph D. Tydings termed Hopps "Edgar Bergen to a lot of Charlie McCarthys and Mortimer Snerds"—a brilliant ventriloquist who spoke through puppets around the world in operating a "web of insurance companies."

Hopps' son, Robert, 33, of Seattle, Wash., also is under federal indictment on similar charges, but was granted a separate trial because he became ill.

Blast, Blaze Damage Plant

BALTIMORE (AP)—An explosion in a resign plant set off a three-alarm fire and released toxic fumes into a building at the Food Machinery and Chemical Corporation Wednesday.

The explosion in the Fairfield section of Baltimore injured two women, who were treated for cuts from flying glass and released at South Baltimore General Hospital. They were Mrs. Alice Deskins and Mrs. Ann Armstrong, both of Baltimore.

Three alarms were turned in shortly before 4 p.m. and employes were evacuated from the plant compound when chemical fumes began seeping through the building after the explosion.

50-Mile Hike Record Set 84 Years Ago

NEW YORK (AP) — Would-be athletes planning 50-mile hikes in line with President Kennedy's physical fitness program, might be interested to know that the American record of 9 hours, 29 minutes, 22 seconds was set 84 years ago.

According to the Amateur Athletic Union's track and field handbook. G. B. Gillie took a 100-mile stroll in New York on May 10 and 11, 1878. He was timed in the 9:29:22 for 50 miles en route to the 100-miles in 21 hours, 42 seconds.

These marks are listed under "noteworthy track performances" because up until the recent 50-mile hikes, nobody has been evincing any interest in walking such long distances.

"In order to make a record, an athlete must make it over a track or road that has been fully surveyed," an AAU spokesman said Wednesday. "But in the interest of President Kennedy's physical fitness program, we will consider faster times made on unsurveyed courses for listing under 'noteworthy track performances'.

"We may even give record breakers medals," the spokesman added.

The President's brother, Attorney General Robert Kennedy, walked 50 miles in 17 hours last Saturday.

Lt. Donald Bernath, a trim marine from Wauseon, Ohio, led a group of Leathernecks from Camp Lejeune, N.C., across the line in a 50-mile hike in a time of 11 hours, 44 minutes.

Five Girl Hikers Finish 40-Mile Trip In One Day

By NORMAN G. CORNISH
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Seven congressional secretaries hiked through the Maryland countryside Wednesday to prove what was obvious at the beginning—they're in better shape than White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger.

By 1 p.m. EST, the girls had covered 20 miles before stopping for a picnic lunch at Great Falls Park alongside the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal. They had begun their march at 6:34 a.m. EST in briskly cold weather.

The hikers made Great Falls their turn-around point. After lunch, they headed back to Washington where they planned to end their hike at the Capitol steps.

Salinger Abandons Plan

The seven were covering a route which Salinger feared to tread. The President's aide begged out of making a similar trek which had been scheduled for Friday. Puffing deeply on his cigar, Salinger conceded "my shape is not good."

The press secretary measures 43-40-43 in descending order. The secretaries were of a more shapely category.

The girls were in jubilant spirits over Salinger's capitulation.

"We felt all along we were in better shape than Mr. Salinger," the leader of the group, Miss Jacqueline McDonald, chortled. There was no dispute from this observer, the only newsman to attempt the dawn-to-dusk march with the girls.

Miss McDonald, 23, who works for Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., set an unflagging pace for the seven, despite the fact she was hobbled by a cut foot shortly after the march down the towpath began.

Administers First Aid

In the jaunty band were Patricia Hughes and Mary McCasie from the office of Rep. Cornelius E. Gallagher, D - N. J.; Alice Schneider (Rep. Donald Clancy, D-Ohio); Carolyn White (Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N. J.); Mrs. Shia Green (Rep. Charles Joelson, D-N.J.) and Maria Jania (Rep. Lucien Nedzi, D-Mich.).

Miss Jania and Miss McCassie dropped out of the hike during the return walk to Washington. Miss Jania had a slight sprain in one foot and Miss McCassie had a sore leg.

Meanwhile back at the White House, there was another hiking fad development.

A visiting group of Boy Scouts gave President Kennedy a hiking merit badge to be awarded his brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy. The attorney general this weekend walked 50 miles from Washington to Camp David, Md.

The scouts also brought with them a hiking pamphlet for Salinger but decided against giving it to him on learning of his defection.

Secrecy Clouds Angola Action

LISBON, Portugal (AP)—A curtain of secrecy conceals what is going on in Portugal's strife-torn colony of Angola.

The Portuguese government said recently that 413 officers and men have been killed since the fight with the Angolans began in February 1961. It insisted that only 244 died fighting the rebels and that the rest were victims of plane crashes and road accidents.

Nearly every day, however, Lisbon papers publish the name of some Portuguese soldier who "has fallen while defending his country."

Many observers believe that at least 2,000 Portuguese have been killed in the dense Angolan jungles.

No official will say whether Angola is becoming another Algeria. But they admit that Angola is getting its main support from the neighboring Congo, in much the same way that Algeria got support from Tunisia and Morocco.

Smog Killed 340

Bulldozer Crash Takes Man's Life

KINGWOOD, W. Va. (UPI) — Harlan Eugene Miller, 34, Valley Point, was killed Wednesday when the bulldozer he was operating skidded over an embankment near here.

Authorities said he was working on a road to a strip mine at nearby Muddy Creeek. Miller was preparing a road to bring a truck in the mining area.

cleared of everyone but two high police officials—Hughes and Deputy Chief George H. Walroldt—and a few FBI men.

"The man told me that he has certain information about the operations of the government and about certain rackets that he would divulge only to J. Edgar Hoover," Wallrodt told reporters.

"And he says he is not going to leave there alive. Sometimes he says he has a bomb and sometimes he says he doesn't."

Talk Over Hour

The police officials tried for more than an hour to talk Wise into coming out from under the auto. He was quoted as saying he had "evidence" that would result in the impeachment of President Kennedy and the whole Cabinet.

Finally a small group of riot police wearing gas masks lobbed seven tear gas grenades under the car and Wise crawled out in a hurry. He was taken first to police headquarters and then to the District of Columbia General Hospital.

At the hospital he commented: "That's what happens when you're trying to do something good."

The lethal-looking metal valise was found to contain nothing but newspapers and a flashlight. Army bomb disposal experts found no explosives in the cans.

Except for the immediate area near the entrance, no effort was made to evacuate the Justice Department building and Hoover remained in his office throughout.

Former Congressmen Should Be Acquitted, Attorney Doub Argues

BALTIMORE (AP)—Conspiracy charges against two former Democratic congressmen should be dismissed because they are vague, a defense lawyer said Wednesday.

The former congressmen, Thomas F. Johnson of Maryland and Frank Boykin of Alabama, were indicted by a federal grand jury last October for conspiracy to defraud the United States and conflict of interest.

George C. Doub, Johnson's lawyer, told U.S. District Court the charges against his client "are the vaguest ever filed in federal court."

Doub, in the last of three days of pre-trial arguments, said if the conspiracy indictment were allowed to stand it would leave the prosecution free to roam.

Chief District Judge Roszel C. Thomsen called Doub's arguments frivolous.

Judge Thomsen is expected to rule within several weeks on Doub's and other motions for dismissal. Trial is scheduled to start April 1.

In addition to Johnson and Boykin, William L. Robinson and J. Kenneth Edlin, both of Miami, Fla., are named in the eight-count indictment.

The four are charged with conspiring to defraud the United States of its right to conduct its affairs without undue pressure, and its right to have its congressmen perform free of corruption.

Government lawyers charge Johnson and Boykin with getting paid to intercede with the Justice Department to have a trial of Edlin's postponed, and to have the indictment dismissed.

Edlin was later convicted for mail fraud and served five months in federal prison.

The government also charges that Johnson was paid by Edlin and Robinson, Maryland savings and loan association operators, for a speech made in Congress defending Maryland's "independent" savings and loan institutions.

Defense attorneys have sought dismissal of the indictment on the following bases:

1. It is too vague.
2. The government has failed to show where payment was made.
3. There have been no offenses against the United States.
4. There was no duplicity involved on the part of the defendants.
5. The government lacks constitutional authority to try a congressman for remarks made in Congress.

Johnson, 53, served two terms in Congress before he was defeated in the general election last Nov. 6.

Boykin, 77, had served 14 terms in the House when he lost a primary election run-off in Alabama in May 1962.

Murder Victim's Father Dies, Seen As Suicide

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Thomas S. Reese, whose daughter, Mrs. Marylyn Sheppard, was bludgeoned to death in one of the nation's most sensational murder cases, was found shot to death in his suburban Cleveland apartment Wednesday night.

Reese, 62, was found dead in an apartment of a motel, where he lived, an apparent suicide.

Deputy Coroner Lester Adelson said he heard that Reese left a suicide note but he did not know its contents.

Dr. Samuel Sheppard was convicted of murdering his pregnant wife on the morning of July 4, 1954 and is now serving a life sentence in Ohio penitentiary.

Mrs. Sheppard's murder touched off a long trial that captured the attention of the nation in 1954. It resulted in Sheppard's conviction of second degree murder.

Zantzinger Faces Another Assault Count

BALTIMORE (AP)—Another assault charge was placed against socialite William D. Zantzinger of Charles County Wednesday.

The 23-year-old gentleman farmer has been freed on $25,000 bail on a homicide charge stemming from the death of a hotel barmaid struck with a cane at a Baltimore society dance last weekend.

The latest charge was made in a warrant sworn out by a bellhop at the hotel where the dance was held, Groge Gesell, 19, of Baltimore. Gesell testified that Zantzinger addressed him in rough language at the hotel's front entrance, and hit him across the buttocks with a wooden cane.

Zantzinger first was ordered to post an additional $500 bail in Municipal Court on the assault charge but Judge Robert I.H. Hammerman later agreed to release the defendant in custody of his attorney under the current bond of $25,000.

All the charges against Zantzinger and those against his pretty wife, Jane, 24, will be taken up at one hearing later. State's Attorney William J. O'Donnell expects to set the date in two or three weeks.

Funeral services will be held Thursday for the hotel barmaid, Mrs. Hattie Carroll, 51, mother of 11 children. An autopsy report said she died seven hours later of a brain hemorrhage.

Twenty-four of the 65 members of the first Congress were lawyers but only 19 members were college graduates.

The Name's The Same

Two freshmen Democrats in Congress, often confused by their constituents, shake hands in the House Office Building where their offices are only a few yards apart. Rep. Clarence Long of Maryland, left, and Rep. Gillis Long of Louisiana often receive each other's mail and telephone calls. (AP Photofax)

Two Reps. Long Receive Many Confusing Requests

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Clarence D. Long of Maryland no longer is surprised when someone asks him for better postal service in Louisiana.

Neither is Rep. Gillis W. Long when he receives mail from Marylanders about Chesapeake Bay oysters.

To make a Long story short, the two freshman Democrats are often confused by their constituents. But it's never difficult to straighten things out because their offices are only a few yards apart in the new House Office Building.

Gillis Long, 39, is a lawyer from the famous clan which produced Huey, Russell and Earl—two senators and a governor. He is a member of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

Clarence Long, 54, was an economics professor at Johns Hopkins University and has written seven books on fiscal problems. He is on the Armed Service Committee.

Both men are veterans of World War II. Clarence was a Naval Reserve officer, while Gills was an infantry captain.

Maryland Briefs

BALTIMORE (AP) — Maryland hospital administrators will meet in Baltimore Feb. 19 to study a new uniform system of accounting for hospitals.

The system was developed by the Hospital Council of Maryland, sponsors of the conference. The meeting will be held at Sinai Hospital.

JESSUPS, Md. (AP)—State Police investigators conferred with doctors at Patuxent Institution Wednesday to determine what type of man might be responsible for the death of Allene Carol Replane.

Meanwhile, investigators continued checking out routine leads in the case of the 25-year-old Laurel schoolteacher, whose body was found in a woods near Ellicott City one week ago.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Baltimore soldier whose heart was repaired with a piece of plastic was reported in good condition Wednesday at Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Pvt. Rollo C. Nimmack, 25, suffered a ruptured aorta in an auto accident two weeks ago while on duty in Germany. He was flown here for emergency surgery.

BALTIMORE (AP—While relatives were at a funeral parlor, thieves hauled off a safe containing $3,000 from the home of the late Joseph Deegan.

Deegan, sheriff in Baltimore city for 32 years, died Sunday. A relative said the safe also contained an undetermined amount of stocks and bonds.

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — The Montgomery County School Board has adopted a $63.3 million budget for next year—$3.6 million less than the current budget.

Four recently elected members of the seven-man board had campaigned on an economy platform. The board slashed $700,000 from the proposed $55.5 million operating budget.

The school construction budget of $8.5 million is about half the amount appropriated last year for building.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Gov. Albertis S. Harrison says Marylanders working in Virginia have no right to complain about the income taxes that went into effect Jan. 1 for out of state residents.

Harrison said Virginians who work in Maryland and other adjacent states must pay taxes in those states. Said Harrison: "I regard our Virginia tax laws as fair and equitable."

Bank On Wheels

CIRCLEVILLE, Ohio (AP) — The banking-from-your-automobile window of one Circleville bank is on wheels itself—temporarily.

First National Bank of Circleville has fitted a small van-type truck with bulletproof glass and steel, power and telephone, air conditioning and a direct radio hookup. It's being parked on the bank's lot each day until a new main office building is built.

She's Courteous To Burglar

BALTIMORE (AP — Courtesy sometimes becomes a habit. Take the example of a woman employe of a loan company victimized Wednesday by a bandit.

She said she placed the money on the counter as the man ordered, then noticed the bandit was having trouble figuring where he would carry the $500 loot.

Without giving it a second thought, the woman asked: "Can I put it in a bag for you, sir?"

"I don't know what in the world made me say that," she said.

Bourbon From Corn

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — To earn the name "bourbon" whisky, there must be at least 51 per cent corn in the grain from which the mash is made.

Most Kentucky bourbons contain 65 to 75 per cent.

AWOL Kittens

LIMA, Ohio (AP)—A new saga of "Three Little Kittens" was enacted here when Debbie Harris, 11, lost her three pets and a neighborhood search failed to find them. Three days later, a traveling salesman neighbor returned the kittens to Debbie and a confused Mama Cat. Checking in at a motel, he found the kittens in the trunk of his car, where Mama apparently had hidden them.

Farmers Down, Loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — In spite of a continued decline in the number of farmers in the United States, the Farm Credit Administration reported that in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1962, farmers and their cooperatives borrowed a record total of $4.8 billion, an increase of 11 per cent over the previous year. There now are 525,000 farmer-members of FCAs in the country.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ◇	Pass	1 ♠
2 NT	3 ♠	5 ♣	5 ♠
Pass	Pass	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

The highly distributional holding presented today produced a variety of interesting results when it came up at the recent fall Nationals held in Phoenix. The optimum East-West contract was five clubs; however, most North-South pairs were permitted to play four spades and made either four or five depending on the defense. One East-West partnership achieved a top score on the deal by doubling their opponents in five spades and recording a two trick set.

West passed as the dealer and, when the auction reverted to him, his opponents had opened the bidding and responded in his two shortest suits. It was his desire to compete in one of the remaining suits, but which one? If East had good hearts and only indifferent clubs, then hearts would provide the best vehicle. In order to avoid guesswork, West made an unusual no trump overcall by jumping to two no trump. Since he has already passed, it must be obvious that he is not making a natural bid, and the common sense of the situation is that he wishes his partner to take a choice between the unbid suits.

North showed his support for South's response by raising to three spades. East's jump to five clubs is worthy of note. This bid is not nearly as drastic as it may seem, for he has an excellent fit for both suits that West is known to have. If it proves that five clubs cannot be made, then surely the opposition can score substantially their way, and the sacrifice should be relatively inexpensive.

South proceeded to five spades and, after the next two hands passed, East doubled. West was on lead with a void in diamonds, and, realizing that he could obtain two ruffs in that suit provided he could put his partner in twice, he opened the deuce of clubs. The underlead of the top two honors is, of course, a risky measure, but West felt that the situation might be desperate.

East was a bit surprised when his queen of clubs held the first trick, but he had little trouble in reaching the conclusion that his partner had no diamonds. A diamond return netted one ruff and when East got in again with the ace of hearts, another diamond lead completed the damages. The 500 point set which was recorded exceeded the value of the defender's nonvulnerable game in clubs.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

The Eyes Have It—In 8 Slick Steps

Eye cosmetics are used with a finesse to stimulate natural beauty, enhansing the eye so it shines out with lustrous depth and intensified color. And the effect is achieved with just a few slick tricks. Want to know them?

1. A sable brush is used to apply eye shadow; then it is blended with the fourth finger. That's how subtle shading is attained. 2. The pencil used in filling in sparse brows and to outline the lids is always first touched to an electric light bulb for a second. The heat softens it just the right amount to give a soft, diffused finish. 3. A pocket-sized pencil sharpener is kept at hand for blunt-pointing any broken eyebrow pencil.

4. One of the new, long-handled, stiff-bristled eyebrow brushes is always used to give brows a satin-groomed finish.

5. Mascara is applied with a brush barely dampened in hot, not cold, water—and always applied to the top side of the upper tier of lashes before the underside is touched. The pluperfect natural effect is attained by always finishing with quick strokes of a clean brush after the lashes are dry. The lower tier of lashes is never touched except when the lashes are definitely blonde.

6. A revolving mascara brush is used to curl the lashes while they are being colored.

7. Mascara remover pads are always ready to clean brushes in a trice.

8. Lashes that need no mascara are given an extra fillip with a metal eyelash curler. To protect the lashes, only curlers with a rubber-lined clamp are used and eyelash cream is applied to the lashes first.

Wherever you shop, you'll want to keep your color type in mind. Send today for my pamphlet called "Your Color Type." Address your request to me, John Robert Powers, c/o this newspaper, enclosing 10c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. It should be delivered within two weeks.

The group donated $10 to the expansion fund and decided to place flowers on the altar on February 24, at which the group will attend the service. "Teen-Talks" attendance certificates were awarded to Donna Sturtz, Linda Fearnow and Linda Northcraft.

"God's Love" was the topic of the worship program, under the direction of Linda Fearnow. Faye Struckman read the Scripture and Mrs. Blanche Fearnow offered prayer.

A program of Valentine games was conducted and refreshments served by Linda Fearnow, Ann Swartzwelder, Linda Northcraft and Faye Struckman. Mrs. Edith Riggleman and Josephine Petenbrink were in charge of decorations, which consisted of red and white streamers.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann: A woman who wrote to you wanted to know why blondes have a reputation for being sexier than other women. I can tell her why. Because they ARE sexier. A blonde will attract more attention from men and and I have proved it.

I am a beautician, 41 years old. Ten years ago I decided to make a personal survey. I dyed my hair every color on the chart — from midnight blue-black to silver blonde. I got lots of whistles and propositions as a red-head, but believe me, Ann, when I went blonde my popularity zoomed.

I noticed, too, that the blonder I got the more popular I became. As a honey blonde I did well, but when I hit the platinum shades—wow!

I married my present husband when I was an ash blonde. Two months later he asked me to go back to my natural shade—plain brown. He said, "Men like to date blondes but they don't want to be married to them." I agreed and we are getting along fine. No other man ever looks at me now.—THE OLD RESEARCHER

Dear Researcher: I am happy to have the results of your survey. A woman who has dyed her hair every color on the chart is fortunate that she has any hair left. If you had continued your research, you might also have learned how men feel about baldheaded women.

Dear Ann Landers: Two weeks ago I married a wonderful fellow. We spent five glorious days in Florida on our honeymoon. We never had any serious spats during our two-year engagement, so I believed this was good evidence we would get along well together after marriage.

Well, maybe I was wrong. We had the biggest fight of our lives on the third day of our honeymoon. The reason: I telephoned my mother three times.

My husband said he had no idea I was such a mama's girl. I'm very close to my parents and see no reason for him to be upset. I just wanted my folks to know I was thinking of them.

Is it wrong for a girl to be considerate of her parents after marriage? R. N. C.

Dear R. N. C.: It's indeed admirable of a bride to telephone her parents while on her honeymoon, but three calls in three days is two calls two many.

You overdid it, Chicken. He's got a right to wonder about such frequent contact.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a soldier who is stationed near a small town. I met a girl at the USO Center and we had one date.

Unfortunately, I brought her home two hours late. Her parents were waiting up and they were boiling mad. I had an argument with her father and swore at him a little. He told me to get out of the house and never to show my face around there again. The girl was grounded for a month.

I see the girl at the USO Center very often and I'm dying to take her out again. She says her folks would never allow it. I'm willing to go to her house and apologize but she says I had better stay away because her Dad is still sore.

Must people pay forever for one little mistake? I'm sorry and I want to square things. Can you help? P. F. C.

Dear P. F. C.: Sorry, but I can't work up much sympathy for a guy who brings his date home two hours late and then swears at the girl's father.

Everything has a price-tag and you'll have to pay for your big mouth. Next time don't let your tongue go on active duty when your brains are on furlough.

To learn the difference between a marriage that "settles down" and one that "gets dull," send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

John Wayne Still Top Movie Attraction

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — There's one giant who still strides among the pale imitations of leading men today with a forcefulness of personality and vigor that recalls a former Hollywood era.

He's John Wayne, the indestructible.

Big Duke Wayne dominates his movies like a benevolent dictator. He is the father image (a term that would turn his stomach) to his fellow actors and the entire crew. They come to him for advice, laughs, raucous jokes and not infrequently for loans.

On the set he is a presence, a powerful argument that movies aren't dead—not by a long shot.

Wayne, the man, is bigger than his physical stature. He rarely answers his critics, and they are legion among the effete method neurotics. Many a director, among them John Ford, believe him to be as gifted an actor as can be found in Hollywood.

Now 55, the broad-shouldered star of 50 movies is more in demand than ever.

I found the big guy pacing a Paramount sound stage where he was putting finishing touches to his latest picture, "McLintock!" He was in costume (western, naturally) and smoking furiously.

"I'm anxious to wrap this one up," he said in that familiar bass voice. "I'm just a bit pooped. There's been a lotta action in this picture and physical stuff, including a jump off a balcony and a mud slide into a mine shaft.

"It's not so bad out on location because you stay in shape and keep moving around. But it drives me nuts to stand around a stage like this just waiting."

To break the monotony Duke had hired a grisled old extra to play an accordion when the cameras weren't turning.

"I like that kinda music," Wayne said, wrinkling his lined forehead. "It helps keep things friendly and relaxed on the set—brings people together more."

Unlike most major stars, Wayne does not hide out in his dressing room between scenes, ignoring the peasants who play minor roles or the lower caste crew members. He is the most approachable character on the set.

He struggled into an outsized jacket that was a part of his costume and drinned broadly: "I don't think I ever played a modern role in a suit and tie.

"If people saw me in my own home they wouldn't recognize me. Fortunately, my career has been devoted to action pictures, and I think they are the only hope for movies. After all, they are called MOTION pictures, and that means physical action.

"They are coming back to action pictures a little bit now because outdoor films can capture the scope and backgrounds on a large screen that television can never grasp. In my opinion nothing can replace the bigness of movies."

There are those who would say that Wayne is a match for that bigness.

Muffler Jury

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — Municipal Judge James A. Maloney decided to let a "jury" of three women decide whether Lawrence E. Menefee's car had overly loud mufflers.

Menefee had pleaded innocent. So, when he appeared in court, Judge Maloney picked three women spectators who had nothing to do with the case to go outside and listen to the mufflers under dispute.

They marked secret ballots which they gave to the judge. Verdict: too loud.

Peace Corps For Business Is Proposed

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) —The Peace Corps, considered by many one of the most successful people-to-people efforts undertaken by the U.S. government, should be expanded into business enterprises, according to a Michigan State University professor.

Dr. Mordechai Kreinin, economics professor, suggests the Peace Corps move into cooperation with small and medium sized business firms abroad.

"The success of the Peace Corps brings to mind the possibility of enlisting business organizations in similar pursuits in the area of technical assistance," Kreinin said.

He suggested such a program could be administered by the Agency for International Development (AID) or an independent agency.

"Under the plan a participating American enterprise would form a partnership with either private interests or the government of an underdeveloped country, with the foreign partner always owning the controlling share," Kreinin said.

"The American partner would supply the central core of managerial and technical personnel necessary to set up a plant in the participating country. The Americans would assume responsibility for training local personnel to gradually take over the management."

Kreinin's plan called for the cooperative contracts to specify a date to terminate the partnership, at which time the American partner would pull out, leaving behind "a viable indigenous company."

Giant enterprises should be excluded from such a program, the MSU professor said, because the program would have to overcome the reluctance of American businessmen to enter into partnerships with foreign governments and the possible fears of exploitation on the part of the participating foreign country.

Food Costs Expected To Continue High

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) —Restaurant - frequenting bachelors beware—your food costs are going to continue to be well above the amount married men have to spend to eat home-cooked meals.

This is the prediction of Mary Zehner, Michigan State University agricultural economist, who says average prices of food consumed at home is expected to change little from last year.

Prices of food consumed away from home, however, probably will continue a long-term upward trend this year, Miss Zehner said.

"Food costs on meals bought in restaurants, cafeterias and drive-ins reflect increased labor costs to a greater extent than those of foods purchased for the family table," the home economist said.

"About $1 out of every $4 spent annually for food is on food eaten away from home," said Miss Zehner. And more than half of the cost of restaurant meals goes for the preparation and serving.

For the home consumer, the prices of cereals, bakery products, fruits and vegetables are expected to increase slightly during 1963, Miss Zehner noted. Dairy products and eggs will remain at about the same price. The average retail price of red meat also is expected to stick close to the 1962 level.

Some lowering of prices for pork can be expected this year, but Miss Zehner said this would be offset by higher lamb prices and slightly higher beef prices.

Bay Fire Is Fenced

NEW YORK (AP)—Texans put their range - oriented habits to work recently in a new direction —they corralled a fire and then extinguished it.

According to Steel Facts, publication of American Iron and Steel Institute, the fire started deep in Galveston Bay, fed by an underwater gas well, and had spread across a wide area of water.

A giant-size fence made of 45-foot-long sheet steel was driven into the floor of the bay and, with the fire fenced in, it was soon put out.

Russia Continues Drive Against Religious Groups

By WELLINGTON LONG

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The difficulty, the atheists agreed, is that logic is ineffective against faith.

The atheists were meeting in Moscow. They were hoping to put new life into a 45-year long drive against religious groups, both tolerated and underground.

Some of the latter, the Evangelical Baptists, came above ground at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow last month, long enough to call their plight to the world's attention.

The 32 men, women and children who implored American diplomats to get them out of Russia have since been returned to Siberia — where some have been jailed, others separated from their children.

Jail is the fate that awaits most of the Soviet Union's underground Christians.

Among those jailed in recent months were three Pentecostalist preachers, sentenced to five years imprisonment each last September, and another Penecostalist in Khirghis named Aslapovskiy, also sentenced to five years in July for "counter revolutionary activities." It was Aslapovskiy's third time in prison for preaching.

Two Baptist girls, Vera Sokolova and Xenia Volodina, went on a 20-day hunger strike in Uzlovaya, Tula Oblast, a year ago to protest invasion of their homes by atheist propagandists.

These are examples of what is published in the official Soviet press.

What is not published is even less appetizing.

An example is cited in two letters smuggled out of the Ukraine and recently released by exiles in Paris.

They told of the systematic oppression of monks and faithful at the ancient Monastery of the Assumption at Pochaev. By means of imprisonment, murder and detention in mental hospitals, the number of monks at this Orthodox center of pilgrimage has been reduced from 140 to 36 in the last two years.

From the official Communist and Soviet point of view, all religions represent a potential threat to security.

Lenin denounced religious and churches as "Organs of bourgeois reaction serving to defend exploitation and to stupify the working class."

He began in 1917 by separating the church from the state and eliminating it from the public school system. The clergy was disenfranchised, forbidden to hold ration cards to have any except the most menial jobs. Priests were murdered or imprisoned.

In the years since, the Communists have vacillated, sometimes switching to positive atheistic propaganda; at other times returning to a direct frontal attack on the churches.

But no matter how the wind blew, even the officially recognized religions such as the Orthodox, Roman Catholic, Lutheran, Reform, Armenian, Islamic or Jewish were forbidden to train new clergymen or to print and distribute bibles, prayer books or other religious paraphenalia.

When Germany invaded Russia in the summer of 1941, the Patriarch of the Orthodox Church publicly prayed for a Soviet victory and enjoined all his priests to do likewise.

That led to reapproachment, in September 1943, when Stalin received Patriarch Sergei in the Kremlin. Stalin thereafter allowed the Orthodox bishops to meet in council, to choose a synod, and to resume training of priests. In return, the Orthodox Church supported the regime's foreign policies without exception.

Stalin now is being attacked by Soviet atheists for this wartime bargain with the church. Nevertheless, his successor, Nikita Khrushchev, confirmed the deal in 1954. Khrushchev also advised atheists to go in more for ideological arguments against religion. By personalizing their program with attacks on individual priests, he advised, atheists often strengthened the churches.

Despite the Stalin - Khrushchev bargain, trials and persecution of clergymen and church closings continued. At latest report, there were less than 20,000 churches for 50 million Orthodox, less than 70 synagogues for three million Jews, less than 1,250 churches for Roman Catholics, and less than 8,000 mosques for 25 million Moslems.

No one knows how many underground Christians or sects there are in the Soviet Union. But from accounts in the official press, their numbers appear to be growing. They include most importantly the Evangelical Christian Baptist, Adventists, Jehovah's Witnesses and Pentecostalists. Many of them believe the end of the world is near and spend their time in prayerful preparation. They refuse to read newspapers, listen to the radio, attend movies or visit social clubs.

These underground Christians are hardy and fearless. The official Soviet press reports numerous arrests of sect members caught stuffing their hand-written tracts into mail boxes.

The atheists have made a great deal of the failure of Soviet cosmonausts to see either Heaven or God while in orbit around the earth.

But at their conference in Moscow in November, 1961, the atheists had to admit they were in trouble. One speaker said it wasn't good enough to contend that Communist and religious morals are mutually exclusive. Another complained that the atheists haven't yet developed more answers to personal problems as have the religions.

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 237 Union and Confederate armies attracted men of fighting bent from Ireland, England, Scotland, Wales, France, Sweden, Germany, Hungary, Russia, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Mexico, Netherlands; even from traditionally peaceful Switzerland. Meanwhile there was a rival attraction for soldiers-of-fortune, a war in which a foreign legion played a decisive role. The legion's leader was a New England Yankee, Frederick Townsend Ward.

Ward was born in 1831 at Salem, Mass., where he acquired a better education than most boys did before going to sea. One of his voyages thrust him into the Crimean War of Turkey, England, France and Sardinia against Russia. He liked free lance soldiering and went on to China where Taeping rebels were harrassing the monarchy's forces and guerrilla robber gangs were rampant.

Ward raised a regiment of mercenaries which he offered to the government at a fixed price for each victory. Ward's foreign legion cleared the country around Shanghai and attracted many natives to its ranks. Ward's U. S. education asserted itself and he insisted on governmental reforms as an added price for his continued service.

When Ward was mortally wounded leading an assault on Tsekie in 1862, Chinese raised an impressive monument at his grave.

New Peru Govt. Still Being Watched

By WILLIAM B. SMART
Editor, Deseret News
Editorial Page
Distributed by UPI

LIMA, Peru—In Peru right now, one gets the feeling he is watching history being written—and that no one knows what the last sentence on the page will say.

This, then, will be the unfinished biography of a military junta still in mid-journey.

Last July, North Americans were startled to read that military officials had seized power, invalidated the elections in Peru, and ousted the president, Manuel Prado, and his cabinet. Maj. Gen. Ricardo Perez Godoy headed the senior military junta that took over. Prado went to a prison island.

Here, it appeared, was another destruction of democracy by the kind of military autocracy that has so long been the curse of Latin American government, and which had interrupted three other South American governments earlier in the year.

That impression was strengthened by recollection of some grim past history. The APRA party that appeared to have won the elections had long been bitterly opposed by the military. Riots and killings 30 years ago had resulted in thousands of Apristas being stood against ancient Inca ruins in the city of Chan Chan and shot.

APRA has long since abandoned its extremism and is now considered a staunch foe of communism. But there were those who felt that the military takeover last July stemmed from the long memories of generals who had not forgotten the old bitterness.

One man who held this view was James Loeb Jr., U.S. ambassador to Peru. On his recommendation, the U. S. promptly broke relations with the new military government, and it appeared the $95 million the U.S. had loaned to Peru earlier this year might go down the drain.

So how does this policy look today, after six months of military government? What are the chances of restoring constitutional elections?

Cesar Gonzalez is an upcoming young businessman, a junior official with a big mining company, owner of a couple of service stations and other interests. He lives with his wife and six children, not lavishly but very well, in the handsome San Isidro area of Lima.

He is no ragged revolutionary. He has a substantial stake in society, and a mature, responsible outlook.

To him there is no question about the military government.

"This is the first government Peru has had that has tried to solve our problems," he says. "This is a historic time. For the first time we are not being governed by those who own the country. For the first time democracy is being given a real chance."

"What you must understand," he insists, "is that this is no military dictatorship. There are no arrests. The press is free. This is exactly what 80 per cent of the people want."

Gonzalez explains that the military had considerable justification for its action. By tradition, it had been appointed supervisor of the elections, to keep order and prevent fraud. After formal investigation, it reported numerous evidences that the election had not been honest — and only after these reports were ignored did it step in to oust President Prado and take power.

The junta has promised elections for next June. Gonzalez has no doubt they will be held, opening up a new democratic vista.

This point of view is shared by many Peruvians with whom we talked. There's a general feeling that the government's new planning commission, its program of land reform, and its insistence on collecting, not just talkint about, taxes all represent real hope.

There's also a widespread feeling that the U.S. government made a serious mistake in breaking off relations with the military government so precipitously.

We detected evidences of discontent, however. A veteran newspaperman, who has been through this sort of thing before, says he is betting against elections being held next June.

So the debate goes. The military goverment of Ricardo Perez Godoy has five months to go—five months in which to lay the foundations of a people's government in Peru or to sow the seeds of counter-revolt. You can get a bet either way.

Boar Problem

NOTH, France (AP) — What does one do with pet wild boars when they get too big to keep any longer?

This is the problem of Andre Simonnet, a postman in this small town. Two years ago, Simonnet found two baby wild boars and decided to raise them. "Zavetta" now weighs 240 pounds and "Brigitte" 140.

"They are likeable and affectionate, but they are getting to be too much trouble," says Simonnet. He can't face the thought of selling them to a butcher.

Old Thimble Factory Going Out Of Business

By KARL H. MACK

SCHORNDORF, Germany (UPI) —The world's oldest and once one of the largest thimble factories is going out of business after 140 years of protecting women's fingers.

The firm of Brother Gabler stops production at the end of this month in the "capital of thimble making."

Founder of the plant was silversmith Johann Ferdinand Gabler, son of a Schorndorf tailor. Gabler is reported to be the inventor of the thimble, at least the thimble of modern days feature first made in 1807.

In 1824 he got a royal Wuerttemberg patent for his thimbles and subsequently started mass production.

Equipped with the first self-constructed thimble machine, the new establishment was off to a good start. Soon after Gabler's thimbles were known around the world. In 1914, the Schorndorf factory produced several million thimbles of all sizes and from various metals, including silver and gold.

"In 1914 there were 130 workers in the factory," a plant spokesman said. "But now there are but 20 left. Most of them are occupied packing up the thimbles. There seems to be no more demand for thimbles."

In a few years, he added, "The only trace of thimbles might be found in our plant museum."

Over the years, the Schorndorf plant collected at least one sample of every thimble made and displayed it in possibly the world's only thimble museum.

Thimbles and finger protectors of all kinds, sizes and most material are on display here. Thimbles studded with jewelry, gold and silver a century ago were the dream of every girl, busily stitching away on her trousseau. Thimbles made of brass and zinc were produced mainly for export to India or Africa.

Why Bourbons Are Different

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — All bourbons contain the same basic ingredients. Differences in body, color, taste and aroma are due to the proportions and quality of corn, rye and barley, variations in the amount of water used in mashing the grain, the distillation processes, the proof (alcoholic content) at which the whisky is distilled, types of barrels used during aging, length of aging and type of warehouses.

Rubber Tube Enables Girl To Live Normal Life

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Diane Cordle, 11, plays in her home and attends school.

She couldn't without the life-saving tube inside her head.

The six-inch silicone rubber tube, inserted five years ago above and behind the right ear under the skin, allows excess fluid from Diane's skull to drain harmlessly into the jugular vein near the heart. It is called a "shunt" tube because it shunts the fluid away from the brain cavity.

Diane's wearing the tube because she was born with hydrocephalus.

Cerebrospinal fluid, as a result, is prevented from escaping into the blood stream by natural means. The abnormal pressure exerted by this fluid usually results in a grossly enlarged head and can cause blindness, mental retardation or death.

Under the circumstances, Diane's parents are about as excited about their daughter attending school and playing at home as the ordinary parent would be about the ordinary child climbing Pike's Peak!

But Diane's operation isn't a medical Hope Diamond. The same skillful surgery has been repeated 20,000 times in this nation and abroad.

The simple tube used in Diane's case wasn't enough for Mark Harbaugh, 4, of Tulsa, Okla., another child born with hydrocephalus.

Mark today is wearing his fourth tube. The first, surgically inserted when he was only four months old, became clogged with bits of tissue.

His tube has a pump contrivance. When pressed, the pump forces fluid through the tube, clearing it of any obstacles.

The delicate brain surgery is not employed in hydrocephalus if the neurosurgeon believes that in a reasonably short time the dammed-up fluid may drain away naturally.

This often happens. But to save eyesight, intellect and life, the head circumference of the stricken infant or child must be carefully checked at close intervals, medical authorities say.

Cerebrospinal fluid normally circulates by way of aqueducts or channels until it is absorbed in the blood vessels of the brain. Hydrocephalus occurs when any of these canals is blocked.

Medical authorities estimate that in the United States the annual incidence of hydrocephalus is more than 15,000, of which 8,000 are stillbirths.

Shunt surgery in hydrocephalus has progressed so rapidly in recent years that the operative mortality rate is "very slight," according to Dr. Eugene B. Spitz, neurosurgeon-in-chief of Children's Hospital in Philadelphia, and associate professor in pediatric neurosurgery at the University of Pennsylvania Graduate School of Medicine.

Spitz is a pioneer in the United States in the shunt technique.

"The shunt technique," he explained in an interview recently, "is one of the safer things we perform today in pediatric neurosurgery. The operative mortality is less today than in appendicitis."

The national Foundation-March of Dimes entered this medical arena after the conquest of polio through Salk and Sabine vaccines, financed by public contributions to the March of Dimes.

"If our aim is to preserve normal mentality in these hydrocephalic infants and children," Dr. Spitz said, "I think the vast majority of them will need some variety of decompressive shunt surgery.

"This business of parents waiting a long period of time to see if their child's head will ultimately stop growing usually results in permanent mental defects.

"In these cases, time is of the essence in the preservation of brain function. Waiting is most often dangerous."

Search For Relics

MILLTOWN, N.J. (AP) — John Jacquemot, 75, has spent nearly half a century picking the countryside clean of Indian relics.

He has 2,000 arrowheads and other artifacts made more than 300 years ago by the Lenni Lenape Indians — sometimes called the Delawares.

The articles were all found within 15 miles of here. In all the years he has been collecting, Jacquemot says, only one landowner ever chased him away.

India has about one motor vehicle for every one thousand persons.

Blind Flier Has Job With Aircraft Firm

By RODNEY GUILFOIL

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (UPI)—A pioneer flier who lost his sight in a plane crash 22 years ago has returned to work at the age of 59 — and enthusiastic about the fact he is doing something useful again.

He is Winn Bradford, the only blind worker among the 32,000 employes of Lockheed Aircraft Corporation. It may be he is the only blind worker in the entire aerospace industry.

A self-taught flier, Bradford barnstormed through the United States as a stunt artist and wing-walker until 1930. Later he became a commercial pilot for American Airlines. Then he lost his sight in the plane crash.

Recently, Lockheed Missiles and Space Company here decided to find a place for Bradford. Officials felt he could serve usefully as a trouble call dispatcher.

The special concessions to Bradfords' handicap were tuning the bells of his four telephones so he could identify incoming calls and designing a metal template so he could properly fill out coded call cards.

The job sounded relatively simple when Bradford first heard about it. But it proved to be a formidable challenge when he actually started work late last year.

"So much of the terminology I heard sounded like a foreign language to me," he recalled. "And then there was the problem of using the phone and recording the complaint on the coded form at the same time.

"I began to lose confidence. I was afraid of letting down all the people who had stuck their necks out for me."

But the girls in his office—Beryl Dorman, Sally Dazzo and Maria Blackton—would help and reassure him. Before long, Bradford got the hang of the job, and from then on it was smooth sailing.

"This has been a new lease on life for me," Bradford said. "It's the first paycheck I have earned since my accident. You can't know what it means to be doing something useful."

Winn Bradford is not the only handicapped man working for Lockheed. Another is Jim Lewis, who is a Polaris electronics assembler, although he has no hands or legs. Lewis received his training from the Goodwill Industries, and was named National Goodwill Worker of the Year in 1962.

Another, but less handicapped, worker is Chuck Ward. He achieved fame of sorts two years ago when he was stationed at Lockheed's Santa Cruz, Calif., test base and was bitten several times in the leg by an angry rattlesnake. But the rattler slithered off, bewildered and slightly groggy.

It had made the error of picking on Ward's wooden leg.

Arizona Valley Has Popular Resort Section

By MURRAY J. BROWN

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) —Gaining ever-increasing popularity as a year-round vacation resort are Phoenix and the surrounding "Valley of the Sun" where, as the song goes, "skies are not cloudy all day."

According to official weather records, the 100 by 30 mile valley in central Arizona is "the driest, sunniest, clearest resort area in the United States."

But climate was not the only attraction for the estimated 4.5 million tourists who visited Phoenix and the valley last year. The region also offers a combination of the Old and New West, a variety of recreational facilities and breat taking mountain and desert scenery.

Phoenix's hotels, restaurants, department stores, shops, homes and mansions exemplify the spirited progress of the New West. Nearby Scottsdale has recreated the atmosphere of the Old West while sleepy cowtowns in the valley have never lost it.

Phoenix and the valley offer a wide range of accommodations, from economical tourist homes and motels ($6-15 a day) to luxurious resort hotels ($30 daily and up) during the winter season. Rates are lower off-season.

Major airlines serving Phoenix provide all-inclusive package holidays at hotels, resorts, motels and dude ranches.

TWA, which schedules nine daily jet flights through Phoenix during the peak winter season (January through April), offer a 3-day, 2-night package ranging from $12.42 to $29.36 per person, double occupancy.

Virtually all the luxury hotels have outdoor swimming pools. Resort hotels in the Camelback Mt. area around Scottsdale also offer guests horseback riding and golfing.

A short drive away are a number of man-made lakes for those who enjoy boating, fishing and other water sports. To the north, near Flagstaff, is the Snow Bowl in the 12,000-foot high San Francisco Peaks for skiers and other snow-birds.

Other nearby attractions include Wickenburg, "the dude ranch capital of the world," ancient Indian ruins, modern Indian villages, ghost towns, mining camps, sweeping praries and deserts, towering mountains and awesome canyons.

Commercials Helped Brown Win Re-election

By JOSEPH A. ST. AMANT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Two young television producers who specialize in comical commercials switched successfully to a serious subject last fall and got probably the highest and most authentic audience reaction rating in history.

Their client was California's Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown in his reelection campaign against Republican nominee Richard M. Nixon.

Their bell-ringing rating—as the producers see it—was Democrat Brown's victory margin of almost 300,000 votes over the former vice president.

Producers Bob Klein, 34, and Alan Barzman, 31, planned and produced 10 hour and a half "telethons" and 15 "spot" commercials with Brown as the star. The "spots" were a "very effective approach," according to Klein and Barzman.

Many of them were run in the afternoon and were aimed at the housewife, Barzman said in an interview.

Use Animated Spots

"We had a couple of animated spots—with little girls and an appealing little dog," he said. "They all end up in the polls in the fadeout—keyed to persuade Democratic women to vote."

Filmed spots of Brown had an appropriate background. The water development spot showed a torrent of water rushing over a dam with Brown saying: "California needs water. I used all my political muscle to put over our great master plan for development of water resources."

"The 'spots' with the governor brought immediacy to the television screen," said Barzman. "We had him right there visually against a background about which he was talking."

"We proved that TV 'spots' can accomplish something that will be memorable," said Klein. "Spots can sell issues as well as products."

Nominee Rates Consideration

Not only the issues but the candidate himself must be understood, said Klein.

"Every candidate can't be an Art Linkletter, walking around with a mike and ad-libbing," he said. "Nixon, in his telethons, was very polished but he had nothing to say. Brown was more relaxed—he was not a TV personality. We told him to be himself on his telethons and this was the first time Pat Brown really developed a television image. The man came through!"

As a result of his success, Brown has been presented with the Klein-Barzman "Game Client Award" given "posthumorously ultimate regard for extraordinary prudence, judgment and bravado . . . "

Wonderful Birds

One bird suddenly cocked his head and dived. He emerged from the water with his big pouch full of wriggling fish.

The other pelicans then dived—one by one.

"I wonder," a tourist mused, "who trains those clever birds?"

Somebody Down There Likes Him

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Somebody in Tucson likes Ted Heil.

Heil, secretary to Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., received one write-in vote on the general election ballot to the following offices:

Arizona Supreme Court; Pima County Superior Court, Divisions 1, 2, 4 and 5; U. S. senator; governor; state senator; secretary of state; state representative; county supervisor; county assessor and clerk of the superior court.

Limericks were popularized by Edward Lear in his Book of Nonsense, written in 1846.

Immediate Help

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Firemen still were hosing the smoldering ruins of the Dale Brownell family home when a group from the nearby Airesearch Co. plant drove up.

They presented Brownell a sizable cash gift. The employes had seen the fire and quickly took up a collection for a man they had never met.

Net Farm Income

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State University extension economists report the net income per farm in Ohio averaged $2,713 in 1961.

Calif. Youth Orchestra Will Perform In Japan

By RODNEY GUILFOIL

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A group of youngsters in the San Francisco Bay Area are making plans for a summer of hard work —but they're wildly excited about it.

They are members of the California Youth Symphony Orchestra and they have been invited on a month-long tour of Japan beginning July 20. The trip is being sponsored by the Asahi newspaper group, which also sponsors a number of youth orchestras in Japan.

The California Youth Symphony Orchestra is composed of 104 amateurs musicians who play to professional standards. The reason is that their conductor, Russian-born Aaron Sten, insists on nothing less.

"I never conduct auditions for the orchestra," Sten said. "But our orchestra has developed such high standards since it was founded in 1952 that any youngster wanting to join us starts working hard long before, so he'll be technically equipped."

The orchestra rehearses every Saturday at Foothill College in Los Altos, a suburb of San Francisco. It rehearses 12 months of the year and even twice a week during Christmas vacation. During the summer, the youngsters go to a camp in the High Sierra.

The orchestra gives six regular concerts a year, along with a number of special concerts. The boys and girls range in age from 11 to 18.

"And we don't play any easy abridgements either," Sten said. "We play the standard symphonic repertoire, with emphasis on Mozart and Beethoven. We play every work in its entirety and I don't let anyone skimp at the hard parts."

A number of the orchestra members intend to be professional musicians and music teachers, but many do not.

"The purpose of the orchestra," Sten said, "is to broaden the children's musical education, to give them something that will enrich them for the rest of their lives."

Measured Hospitality

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Many large homes in early Kentucky had a vagrant's chamber where strangers could stay overnight.

The residents did not wish to turn away a stranger—but also did not want to give him access to th entire house.

Insurance Man Changes Togs For His Clients

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lee B. Winkler, 36, sold $2,251,000 worth of life insurance last year. He attributes such success partially to the fact that, sartorially speaking, he leads a double life.

About 70 per cent of his clients are in the theater and when he is dealing with them he dresses in a somewhat theatrical manner to the point of wearing an overcoat with a Persian collar and a matching hat.

When he is with his corporate clients he dresses in his "square" rig.

"I was a frustrated ham and a frustrated writer and tried to write for television for two years," he said. "I was a very great failure, but I wanted to stay in show business so started the firm in 1954, specializing in theatrical types."

The firm, Winkler Associates, Ltd., insures such celebrities as Victor Borge, Rise Stevens, Patrice Munsel, David Susskind, Skitch Henderson and Mike Nichols.

Winkler, who sometimes has to change clothes in the middle of the day to suit the needs of a particular client, was in his theatrical gear when we talked with him—a sharply tailored blue-black three button suit nipped in at the waist and with cuffs on his sleeves and none on his pants.

"Corporate clients object to cuffs on the sleeves and no cuffs on the pants," he said. "So I wear my square dress. Regular straight pants with cuffs. Regular shoes, Brooks cut jacket, standard regimental tie. Plain hat and plain overcoat. It is very important in meeting such people to be dark and plain.

"If I wear my square rig to a theatrical appointment they might look askance but wouldn't say anything since they also expect an insurance man to be stodgy. But in regular business you're strange looking if you don't conform and they come right out and say so. Usually they say I need a haircut."

Though Winkler dresses theatrically to please his theatrical clients he notes they themselves dress casually but not wildly. They wear business suits and sports jackets around town "but the whole effect is one of quiet good taste."

He reserves some of his more spectacular costumes for such events as opening nights at the opera or a fisrt night at the theater when he arrives in a Rolls-Royce black silver dawn limousine with red leather upholstery and a chauffeur. During the day he drives himself.

"I'm toying with the idea of getting a naval type cape — they're coming back," he said. "Make you look like a French gendarme. But my wife tells me it is very gauche to wear with anything except tails. Very sorry. Loves capes."

Pilot's Wife Accustomed To Tension

(EDITORS: Before inetrnational crises and after, men in the military service and their wives find world tension a part of their lives. How does this affect the families of these men? The following dispatch describes the way one young wife reacts to a life of such constant tension.)

By ROBERTA ULRICH

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI)—Two mornings a week Marlin Richardson leaves his home in suburbia and heads for work.

On the third morning, Richardson takes along an overnight bag. When he picks it up, his family knows he won't be home for 48 hours.

After that, barring emergency, his is home for two days.

Except that he cannot go farther than a specified distance from his job even while not actually at work, Richardson's routine is not too different from that of many a young businessman who travels. But Marlin Richardson does not wear a business suit or work at a desk.

He wears a U.S. Air Force uniform and his traveling is done at more than twice the speed of sound in an F106 jet fighter plane, patrolling the skies along our northern border.

Richardson, 30, a native of Delta City, Miss., has been in the Air Force more than 10 years. For seven years, he has been married to NanEtte, 27, of Leland, Miss. They have four children, Bert, 6; twins Carla and Marlin, 5, and Don, 9 months.

Geiger Heights, where the Richardsons live, is six miles from his station at Geiger Air Force Base. It looks like any nice suburban development. Setting it apart are the military ranks that precede the names on the identical signs that adorn every home and—the klaxon.

The klaxon sounds frequently for the families of the 498th fighter-interceptor squadron, signalling practice alerts.

At the sound, every man in the development hurries into his working uniform and races for his car and the base, leaving a world of wives and children.

Families such as these feel much more closely than most such national crises as the Cuban affair.

"During that alert I didn't see Marlin for seven days," Mrs. Richardson said. "He could call occasionally, but I didn't even know what he was doing."

At home the dark-haired, attractive young wife had her hands full with four children—the oldest in first grade and the twins in kindergarten—and the problems of getting settled in a new and largely unfurnished home. The family had returned in August from four years duty in Spain.

During her husband's absences, Mrs. Richardson finds it easy to keep busy. "I save some things to do while Marlin is on alert," she said. "Things like sewing and cleaning closets that mess up the house and mean neglecting routine chores."

Her hardest job is to continue preparing full dinners without her husband there to appreciate the meal or its setting. "It's an awful temptation just to give the kids hamburgers and cokes," she said.

"They'd like that every night. I pick times he's gone to fix things he doesnt' like and I do, such as casseroles."

Discipline is another problem. As in most households, daddy's voice brings instant obedience to such commands as "Go to bed."

Loneliness is not a real problem. "I won't ever say I like having him gone," said Mrs. Richardsor of her husband. "But it's part of the Air Force life."

"I dont' really think about the danger unless something happens to some else. Then you stop and think and it scares you. But this is what he likes to do and if he's happy, I'm happy."

All Countries Require License Tag On Autos

By RAY FARKAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Anywhere in the world you drive you must have a license plate on your car.

In Italy they cost about $60 each.

In Egypt they're only about $1.50.

In the United States you pay anywhere from $10 to $25 to register the family car, and sometimes more than $200 for a big tractor-trailer truck.

A survey published in the "Ford Times" showed the profit margin on making the plates is terrific. Most states make their tags in state prisons for about 25 cents a plate.

Some years ago a few states put out license plates the shape of the state—Tennessee and Pennsylvania, to name two.

In 1956, at the request of the auto makers, the states adopted a standard size—six by 12 inches.

Though the states gave up the right to distinctive sizes, they still hold on to the slogans and emblems which adorn the tags.

For example, Wisconsin, as any of its license plates will tell you, is America's Dairyland; Michigan is the Water Wonderland; Kansas the Wheat State; Georgia, the Peach State; Nebraska, the Beef State, and Illinois, the Land of Lincoln, etc.

Low license numbers usually mean political prestige. Or maybe just political pull.

The governor of a state almost invariably gets number one, the lieutenant governor, two, and so on down the line through the major state offices.

Once past the governor's mansion and the state legislature, scrapping really begins. Some people pull hard on all the strings to get that distinctive number. In one instance a car owner was said to have sold his rights to a low number plate for $500.

But if you lose out in this number's game, there is always the chance of getting distinctive lettering.

Connecticut issued tags to two teen-age friends—"Rock" for one and "Roll" for the other.

During steel-scarce World War II, many states merely issued gum stickers to renew old plates. But Illinois brought out a plate of pressed fiber containing, among other things, soybeans.

They looked good, but dogs and cows ate them.

Valentines Are Versions Of Old Love Letters

By MARGARET RICHARDS

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Valentines this year say "I love you" in the tender sentiment of the world's oldest love letter or they reflect the kind of thoughtfulness St. Valentine himself expressed to his jailer's blind daughter on the eve of his execution.

About half of the 1963 valentine crop is meant for sweethearts, wives and mothers and subscribes to an affection reminiscent of the message a Babylonian youth wrote on a clay tablet to his love more than 4,000 years ago.

The others express a friendly "from your valentine" message for children, neighbors and relatives, similar to the one penned by St. Valentine that night, almost 1,700 years ago, before he was beheaded for not renouncing Christianity.

Among the many new designs is one (by Hallmark) which reproduces Elizabeth Barrett Browning's famous poem, "How Do I Love Thee?"—printed in handwritten script on pink parchment paper.

The elegance of the Victorian era is recaptured in a series of heirloom cards which open to reveal a profusion of cupids, hearts, rosebuds and castles. The old-world charm of these designs was inspired by the early German mechanicals or "pull-downs" as they were called.

Some of the new cards are stylized in design with decorator colors and simplified messages and appeal to the more sophisticated person. "Happy Valentine's Day, Pet!" is the message of one card which is designed with an elongated, black velvety cat with green eyes and wearing a pink heart choker.

Another card in pink, designed with line drawings of strawberries, opens in three folds to say, "Valentine, you're the berries, I'm glad I picked you."

Blunder In Beirut

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP)—Interior designer Mrs. Georgette Davenport encounters many problems in her world travels.

Her greatest was in Beirut, where every wall and every room in a big hotel got painted the wrong hue.

American Is Helping Jordan Develop Its Water Supply To Restore Barren Land

By RAY J. MOLONEY

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI)—When in Jordan you do as the Romans did—at least if you want water.

In a modern tribute to the skill of Roman engineering, a California-born construction engineer, Oliver H. Folsom, 53, is rehabilitating Roman wells, cisterns and canals in a U.S.-backed program to bring water to this barren land.

"There is virtually nothing that we could have taught the Romans about the utilization of water supplies," Folsom said. "The policy that we are following is a definite one of seeking out and using the old Roman waterworks because almost invariably their system was the best way to develop the water and their basic engineering concepts are the equal of anything we have to offer today."

The "we" referred to is the Jordan Central Water authority, a government department designed to find and exploit Jordan's scanty water resources.

Although technically a member of the U.S. foreign aid service, Folsom has been assigned to the Jordanian government to head the department and is, in effect, one of the most important ministers in the Jordanian government.

Folsom arrived in Jordan in September, 1960, for a two-year period. In a tribute to his work, Jordanian premier Wasfi Tel appealed to him to remain "in office" for another two years. Folsom agreed.

Beginning his hunt for water in late 1960, and using some $350,000 of funds earned through sale of U.S. weaht to Jordan, Folsom has uncovered and restored 50 ancient Roman water systems, mostly in the barren southern sectors of Jordan.

"In our hunt," said Folsom, "we seek the smallest sign of grass or anything green in the desert. Even a single tuft of bush means that, somewhere near, there is water.

"Almost invariably when we dig down—sometimes several feet—we find Roman remains. Sometimes they have been so wrecked by the passage of years that we cannot use them and we have to build all over again. But, wherever possible, we merely repair and strengthen, and then move on to seek other supplies."

Folsom insisted that those who ignored the Roman methods of trapping and storing water did so at their peril.

The Romans, apparently, had an organized system to maintain their wells and cisterns and it was only after their departure that sand and rubble began to drift in and block up the water outlets.

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 238 Same day, Nov. 5, 1862, Secretary of War Stanton penned a letter to Maj. Gen. George B. McClellan, summarily removing him from leadership of the Army of the Potomac, the commander of that Army's 3rd Corps, Maj. Gen. Fitz-John Porter, was sent a summons. It required him to face a court-martial.

John Pope, McClellan's interim predecessor, declared Porter disobedient to orders at Groveton, Va., where the Union forces suffered costly defeat back in August. Meanwhile, Porter had led the corps through three major engagements without reason for complaint. Lincoln and Stanton had taken away Pope's command because of the latter's failures.

Nevertheless, Porter was brought to trial in Washington, Nov. 27. After six weeks of proceedings, he was stripped of his rank and discharged from the Army.

That was far from the end of the affair. After the war was over, Porter pressed for a review, and aided by his old friend, U. S. Grant, succeeded in obtaining a reversal of the verdict. Porter turned down a commission as general in the Egyptian army to continue his struggle for vindication.

In 1886 he was reappointed colonel of infantry, but without retroactive pay, and placed on the retired list. An act of Congress providing compensation was vetoed by President Arthur. Meanwhile Porter had worked as a mine superintendent in Colorado and served as a police and fire commissioner in New York City.

County To Meet With LaVale Group To Discuss Sewage Plan

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. at the Court House with the LaVale Sanitary Commission to discuss the proposed sewage project.

Members of the LaVale unit will discuss with the commissioners what they wish to do in regard to handling the sewage problem.

Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the county board, said the commissioners will talk over the method the LaVale agency would like to use in the matter.

LaVale could decide to become a part of a sanitary district which would include Frostburg or it could decide to retain the present authority or jurisdiction in meeting the problem, Getty stated.

The report of Buchart-Horn, a firm of consulting engineers of York, Pa., submitted a report to the county board last month stating that LaVale's use of Cumberland's sewage treatment facilities the most feasible method and the least expensive.

The York firm yesterday submitted a bill for $2,832.13 for services in connection with a survey of engineering data on a number of sewage plans in the county. The survey was authorized by the county board and was done at the direction of a County Sewage Study Committee.

Boy Killed When Truck Overturns

A 13-year-old high school student was killed instantly shortly after midnight Tuesday when a truck driven by his father overturned on U. S. Route 220 between Moorefield and Petersburg in Hardy County, W. Va.

Dead is Maurice Helmick, a student at Mathias High School. He was a passenger in the cab of a truck driven by his father, Melvin Lee Helmick, of Baker, who was uninjured in the one-vehicle mishap.

Also uninjured was another passenger, Ray Lester Miller, who was seated between the driver and his son in the truck's cab.

The elder Helmick was operating his truck, loaded with coal, south on U. S. 220 near Harper Central Dairy, enroute to Riverton, W. Va.

Forty-five minutes of snowfall made the highway slippery and the truck failed to negotiate a sharp curve. The vehicle ran off the roadway and into a field, where it overturned.

Services have been scheduled for Friday, 2 p. m., at Pine Grove Methodist Church at Needmore. Rev. Vernon Decker will officiate and interment will be in the church cemetery.

Besides his father and mother, Freddie (Wilkins) Helmick, he is survived by a brother, Melvin Levi Helmick, and two sisters, Loretta and Naomi Helmick, all at home.

Delivered By Truck

SALINA, Kan. (AP) — E. A. Baalman of Menlo, Kan., investigated a suspicious chirping in the rear of his cattle truck at a cross country stop.

Underneath the frame he found a nest with three little robins. Baalman left the nestlings intact and continued on to Menlo where he expected mother robin would be waiting.

Valentines Will Feature Many Subjects

NEW YORK (UPI)—Fire engines, coin banks, spinning wheels and word games are among the combination gift-greetings for the younger set featured in valentine cards this year.

And while the elders are making their selections for their favorite small fry among the three-dimensional doll houses and military periscopes, the moppets themselves will be busy exchanging those traditional penny valentines with schoolmates.

The four-room doll house, a Hallmark design for 1963, is a colorful book card which opens to receive living room, dining room and kitchen furniture and a family of three—all sturdy paper and cardboard cutouts.

Another popular cutout this year features a nurse's cap, prescription cards, tongue blades, "thermometer" and even heart-shaped candy pills in a plastic bottle.

For science-minded youngsters, there is a magic beanstalk greeting containing a packet of real beans which can be planted at home or in school room window box.

The penny valentine, in a variety of forms, still remains a great favorite, Hallmark reports.

One innovation in the cellophane packets of 20 or more is the enclosure of a special card for teacher.

Youngsters also can paste together simple make-your-own valentines in a variety of white on red paper designs.

For "Baby's First Valentine's Day," there is a pastel colored teddy bear card that squeaks when pressed together.

Many Uses Are Being Found For New Tapes

CHICAGO (UPI)—Poets say love makes the world go 'round.

But an industrialist says sticky tape holds the world together.

Robert J. Leander, a man who makes his living in adhesives, says the burgeoning tape business has long since grown out of the confines of the home.

"A large part of the tape business today really is out of this world," he said in an interview. He cited use of exotic tapes on the satellite launching pads at Cape Canaveral as one example.

Withstanding short-term heat of up to five-thousand degrees, the tape rides along with missiles and jet aircraft.

Down to earth, the sticky tapes have found a myriad of applications up to and including patching and holding together a cracked auto windshield.

Leander, president of Mystik Adhesive Products Inc., described how development of tapes for the military leads to better tapes for use on the homefront.

During World War II, for example, the tape engineer came up with a cloth-backed waterproof tape to protect military hardware against the elements.

The tapes, postwar, were put to multiple uses in homes.

More recently, tape scientists have successfully utilized such test-tube products as mylar, telflon and plastics to produce space age tapes capable of withstanding both high and low temperature extremes.

In time, he predicted, these too, will find a purpose on the homefront.

County To Establish New Polling Place In LaVale

Matthew J. Mullaney, president of the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors, appeared before the county board of commissioners yesterday to outline plans for an additional polling place in District 29, LaVale.

Mullaney appeared as the result of a request by the county commissioners for some way to alleviate the crowding which occurred during the primary and general elections last year at the LaVale Fire Hall.

The election board officials said that plans had been considered for some time to correct the problem and the new polling place would probably be in Parkside School.

Mullaney said that the designation of a new polling place entails some problems in itself. The LaVale election district will have to be divided and the voters in the area will have to be notified of which polling place they will cast ballots in future elections.

For many years the LaVale area has not had exact addresses of voters, only a route number used for mailing purposes. Since the huge suburban area has boomed in the last five or six years there have been streets marked and house numbers assigned.

Mullaney said the best method of hadling the situation would be to have a re-registration for the area with the exact addresses of all registrants. There has not been a general re-registration in that area since 1932, Mullaney pointed out.

Ruble To Succeed Vickers On LaVale Sanitary Unit

Arthur A. Vickers, LaVale, engineer in charge of the local office of the U. S. Geological Survey Surface Water Branch, today submitted his resignation as a member of the LaVale Sanitary Commission.

Vickers is being transferred to Trenton, N. J., as of March 1 as chief of the basic records section. He and his wife and three children will leave here at the end of this month.

Commissioner Louis V. Shinnamon said that the resignation of Vickers was accepted with regret and the board appreciated his services on the LaVale unit.

Shinnamon also moved that Paul L. Ruble, Coverwood, be lines hope to offset some of the competition of airplane travel. named to complete Vickers' unexpired term on the LaVale agency. Commissioner Russell Carder seconded the motion. Commissioner Robert Little Ebert was in Washington yesterday attending a meeting in connection with the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory reduction in force announcement.

Fast Italian Ships To Start Atlantic Route

TRIESTE, Italy (UPI) —The biggest and fastest Mediterranean ships to plow the Atlantic routes to the United States will start operating around the middle of 1964.

They will be the Michelangelo, launched last September in the Ansaldo shipyards of Genoa, and its twin ship, Raffaello, scheduled to be launched shortly in the adriatic shipyards of Monfalcone, near here.

With them, the Italian passenger fleet is expected to consolidate its second position in freight and passenger movement on the North Atlantic routes.

Each ship has a tonnage of 43,000. When completed, each will have 11 bridges, a garage capable of accommodating 40 automobiles, three power stations which could serve a town of 200,000 and a radiotelephone switchboard with 700 numbers.

The considerable speed of the ships—29 knots—will cut down the time of the crossing from their home port of Genoa to New York to seven days.

The Michelangelo and the Raffaello will be manned by a crew of 720 each and will be able to transport 1,850 passengers.

With construction of the two ships, and of another two transatlantic liners of 27,500 tons, the Galileo Galilei and the Giuglielmo Marconi, the Italian shipping

Garrett County Attachment Bill Fails In House

House Bill 280, sponsored by the Garrett County Delegation, failed in the House of Delegates yesterday, according to an Associated Press report.

The bill would have decreased from $100 to $40 the amount of wages which would have been exempt from attachment in Garrett County.

Also failing of passage in the house was House Bill 297, entered by the Caroline, Kent and Queen Annes delegations, to revise laws regarding the exemption of wages from attachment.

The Allegany and Garrett delegations yesterday introduced House Bill 396, to exempt persons 65 or over from having to obtain a fishing license.

The bill is a companion to bills introduced by Senator George R. Hughes which would allow senior citizens to fish and hunt without licenses.

Ask Season Change

Newly introduced is House Bill 405, by the Garrett and Allegany delegations. It would change the mink and muskrat seasons in Western Maryland counties from December 15 to March 1 to from November 15 to February 15.

The Allegany County delegation met yesterday to pass out a number of Senate bills which will lead to editing of the 1955 Code of Allegany County Laws.

Charles M. See, chairman of the delegation, said the bills, after passage, will permit Dr. Carl N. Everstine, director of the Maryland Department of Legislative Reference, to edit the old code into the 1963 code. The measures are referred to as "housecleaning" bills.

The chairman also announced that a hearing with representatives of the LaVale Fire Company will be held next Wednesday at 3 p.m. at the State House in connection with a request by the fire company for fire tax legislation.

David Williams, vice chairman of the County unit, was asked to request information from the county roads supervisor in regard to the condition of roads in the Oldtown section of this county. A delegation from that area had appeared before the delegation with a request for improvements to roads, See said, explaining that Williams is to obtain information on the need prior to next week's meeting.

Delegates Noel S. Cook and Fred H. Anderson were appointed to report on details of the library incentive bill, the appointment being a followup of a telegram from Dr. Adam Baer, president of the board of directors of Allegany County Library.

It is understood, according to the delegation chairman, that additional revenue from state and federal sources will be available should the Board of Commissioners of Allegany County increase its appropriation for the library.

RUSSIAN RIVIERA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Crimea is fast becoming Florida-on-the-Black Sea, says the National Geogrphic Society.

The scenery on Russia's Riviera is far from the popular concept of the Russian landscape. The slopes that lead to the deep-blue waters are dotted with white villas vineyards, palm trees, olive groves, magnolias and bright patches of flowers. Modern hotels and western-style camp sites have sprung up in recent years.

FRUIT RESEARCH

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Horticulturists at Pennsylvania State University are seeking ways to retard the spring blossoms on fruit trees.

They believe that if blossoms—normally considered the harbingers of spring—can be delayed until all danger of frost is past, growers could probably produce a larger abundance of fruit crops.

TWINS

MONTREAL, (UPI) — The air routes between Washington and New York and between Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, are twins, according to the International Air Transport Association. Both routes are approximately 200 miles long and both are served by 30 to 40 flights per day.

Plaintiff Given Verdict Of Jury

An Allegany County Circuit Court petit jury yesterday returned a verdict for the plaintiff in a damage suit involving a dispute over an electric organ. Associate Judge W. Earle Cobey presided.

The damage suit was filed in court by Samuel W. Crowe and Melva Crowe, his wife, of near Frostburg, against Naomi Chaney trading as the Tally Ho Restaurant, Eckhart Flat.

The Crowes, who sought $2,500 damages, were awarded $452.72. A counter-plaintiff suit was dismissed before the case was heard.

6,485 Shelter Spaces Marked In This County

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The director of Maryland's Civil Defense Agency said Wednesday the state has 822 buildings marked as public fallout shelters, with spaces for 439,482 persons.

The federal government so far has stocked 191 of these buildings, containing spaces for 71,539 persons, with food, water, medical supplies and radiation detection instruments.

Eventually, all of the buildings will be stocked under the continuing program.

Gen. Rinaldo Van Brunt gave a status report on the shelter program during a visit to the legislature for his agency's budget hearing.

He told newsmen that most of the marking and stocking of shelters has occurred since the federal government placed new emphasis on the program during the Cuban crisis last October.

Shelter spaces have been designated so far in Baltimore City and all of the state's 23 counties except Calvert and Worcester.

Gen. Van Brunt said a total of 1,220,000 shelter spaces have been located, but many are in private buildings where owners permission must be obtained before they can be given the yellow and black signs designating them as public shelters.

The number of buildings marked thus far in counties, and the spaces they provide, include:

Allegany 12, 6,485; Carroll 29, 3,915; Frederick 35, 8,755; Garrett 1, 60; Montgomery 103, 68,525; and Washington 17, 4,915.

Local Man Is Chairman Of Symphony Concert

R. FINLEY THOMPSON

R. Finley Thompson, 540 Rose Hill Avenue, has been named general chairman of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra concert committee for 1963.

The announcement was made by J. S. Wilson, district manager of Columbia Gas of Maryland, Inc., who said the Pittsburgh Symphony will be brought to Cumberland for a concert Wednesday, April 3. The Gas Company has sponsored the Symphony program in three prior years — 1957, 1959, and 1960.

Thompson, who is active in the Cumberland Civic Symphony Orchestra, has served on the Pittsburgh concert executive committee and has been active since its beginning. In 1960, he was chairman of the program committee. He is superintendent of technical information at the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, Rocket Center.

The gas company's sponsorship of the Pittsburgh Symphony concert is unique. Local civic and service clubs benefit by the sale of tickets to the music event. The money for each ticket a particular club sells is returned to that club for its use. The only requirement is that those funds be devoted to community service projects.

In 1960, some 23 Cumberland area clubs benefited from the sale of concert tickets. In the three years the symphony has played in Cumberland, over $8,800 from ticket sales has gone into local club treasuries for use in area community activities.

Although the majority of clubs which sold tickets for the 1960 concert were from the immediate Cumberland area, other organizations represented Lonaconing, Westernport, Frostburg, LaVale, Ridgeley and Keyser.

Steel Profits And The Union

Reports of poor 1962 earnings by the three top steel producers—a 15-year low for the Bethlehem Steel Corp.—reflect the intense cost-price squeeze to which the industry has been subjected.

Profits have a bearing on prices and wages. It is doubtful if a price increase at this time would be of immediate help. Current demand isn't strong enough to sustain higher prices.

Neither is this the time, according to Bethlehem's chairman, Arthur B. Homer, for any increase in employment costs. To make this view stick, however, would require the agreement of the United Steelworkers of America, which has the option of reopening its contract with the industry this spring.

Thus far the union hasn't made known its plans. U. S. Steel's Roger Blough, however, thinks the union's leadership "understands" the industry's problems.

Mr. Blough's impression is the result of discussions that have been going on between the union and industry in the Human Relations Committee. If Mr. Blough is correct, the steelworkers' leaders are showing the type of statesmanship that has been sadly lacking in strike-ridden industries in recent months.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

Hemingway And Fidel Castro

The picture was suggestive of better days. There it was, staring from the back pages of a newspaper, a photograph of a whiskered Ernest Hemingway chatting amiably in Havana with a full-bearded Fidel Castro. The date for the photograph was May 15, 1960, which would make it some fourteen months before Hemingway's tragic death, presumably by suicide, from a shotgun wound in Idaho in the summer of 1961.

The picture started one thinking about Hemingway's romantic life of danger, a life which fed his remarkable writing. He had been a connoisseur of wars and revolutions. In 1944 he marched into Paris with a group of the Free French; before that, in Spain, he had been a reporter of the ebb-and-flow of the civil war which was eventually won by Franco.

Though he liked to be thought of as a realist, one who could always be relied upon to make an accurate record of the "way it was," Hemingway was always hopeful that the cause of humanity would triumph in the wars and revolutions he reported. When the Stalinists moved in on the republicans during the Spanish fracas, bringing with them their techniques of slander and their execute-them-first-and-try-them-later methods of justice, Hemingway kept quiet about it. To him, Franco's Fascists were the greater evil—and if the republicans needed the support of the Stalinists to win, the forces of freedom would have to march a short distance with the devil for the sake of the long-term good.

When the "United Front" in Spain did not suffice to beat the Fascists, Hemingway was a disillusioned man. As a lover, an aficionado, of Latin culture, he transferred many of the affections he had lavished on Spain to the island of Cuba. He bought a place, the Watchtower Farm, outside Havana, where he lived an outdoor life in between his long disciplinary bouts with words in his study. Cuba became his home; he returned to the United States for hunting trips in Idaho, or for visits to the Mayo Clinic in Minnesota, but his property interests were centered in his Caribbean island farm. He shunned New York, whose literary critics he disliked; for reading, he preferred the 5,000 volumes in his own personal library to anything in the metropolitan press.

During happy times in Cuba Hemingway numbered Fidel Castro among his friends. The two shared a passion for fishing—and, indeed, Castro once carried off the first prize in the Hemingway Annual Fishing Tournament.

It is not known to me, or to anyone else so far as I am aware, that Hemingway ever had anything to say about the course of the Cuban Revolution as his old fishing companion, Fidel Castro, turned more and more to Yankee-baiting and to seeking the active support of the Russian Communists whose behavior had been so fatal to the cause of democracy in Spain. Other "Yanqui" writers—the recently deceased sociologist C. Wright Mills was one—have tried to apologize for Castro, but Hemingway remained officially mum.

After 1960 Hemingway was a sick man, and more and more he sought the help of doctors in the United States. He may not have had either the time or the opportunity to look into the subject of Fidel's persecution of many of the original anti-Batista comrades-in-arms, his liquidation of even the pro-revolutionary elements of the Cuban middle class. The sound of Castro's firing squads, busy with their grim work, may not have penetrated to Hemingway's room at the Mayo Clinic or to his hunting headquarters in Idaho.

Since nobody actually witnessed the infliction of the gunshot wound that caused Hemingway's death, it is not possible to say for certain that he killed himself. Even so, it is known that Hemingway was not in a hopeful mood before he died. The 1960 photograph of "Papa" Hemingway talking so animatedly with a smiling Fidel Castro made me wonder—and I would like to offer my speculation here for what it may be worth. Could it be that Hemingway, disillusioned with Fidel, had abandoned more than his property in Cuba? Could he also have left behind him his hopes that any revolution might turn out well?

When Hemingway died, the failure of "Fidelismo" to liberate the common man in Cuba had already become plain. Could Fidel's failure have been the last betrayal to "Papa" Hemingway, a black work of treachery to humanity which no sensitive man could accept?

'Pearl Harbor Error' And De Gaulle's Design

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

A high proportion of the worst mistakes of American policymakers arise from what may be called the Pearl Harbor error.

The Pearl Harbor error consists of disregarding or downgrading the hard evidence of a foreign government's intentions — in the Pearl Harbor case, the broken Japanese naval codes — because those intentions look altogether too irrational from the special angle of vision of Washington.

The returns are not yet in from the reappraisal on the highest level which the President ordered after the whole situation of the Western alliance was abruptly transformed by Gen. de Gaulle's brutal, solitary act. Yet it is not too soon to ask whether the Pearl Harbor error is not about to be committed once again, and on a truly grandiose scale.

It is clear, at any rate, that the hard evidence concerning the real nature of Gen. de Gaulle's design for Europe is currently being downgraded, if not absolutely disregarded. This is the case although the broad outlines of the de Gaulle design are clear enough.

An exclusive Europe, dominated by the Franco-German partnership, and led by de Gaulle himself as the awe-inspiring senior partner — these are the main elements. The chief, indeed the only real obstacle to full realization of this design is the German-American relationship.

Gen. de Gaulle could not have scored such a shattering initial success with his design if the Kennedy administration had dealt more wisely with the German-American relationship. The pros and cons of the President's dealings with de Gaulle are eminently arguable. But if de Gaulle was to be crossed, opposed, and enraged, it was sheer folly not to do everything possible to maintain Dulles-like ties with Chancellor Adenauer. There can be no argument about that.

But although the German-American relationship has been impaired, and although this impairment gave de Gaulle the needed opening for his Franco-German pact, the old relationship's solid base is still very much there. The American military presence is the chief defense of Western Germany.

Yet, some time in the future, Gen. de Gaulle rather plainly hopes to remove this obstacle to his grand design, by the simple expedient of forcing the withdrawal of the American troops from Europe. The hard evidence that this is his real intention is being ignored in Bonn, as well as downgraded in Washington; but it is there nonetheless.

The strange French effort to drive English out of the German schools and the German general staff is symbolic of Gen. de Gaulle's purpose. The device by which he hopes to achieve his purpose — apparently before the defense-sensitive Germans really grasp what is happening — is an attack on the highly vulnerable U. S. balance of payments.

The attack has already begun, though without success thus far. As previously reported in this space, de Gaulle tried and failed in Paris to secure a flat German commitment to give French sources absolute priority whenever buying arms abroad. The French Embassy in Bonn is keeping up the pressure for German arms-buying in France rather than the United States, "in the spirit of the Paris pact."

As already explained here, this is a direct French assault on the German-American "offset agreement," which is such an important factor in the recent improvement, insufficient yet significant, of the U. S. balance of payments. But the assault on the offset agreement is not the end of the story, by any means.

The U. S. trade negotiator, Gov. Christian A. Herter, has now returned from Europe with grim forecasts of a sharply exclusive European policy towards U. S. farm product exports. These now amount to over $1 billion a year.

Hence a drastic reduction of our farm exports to Europe might be enough, in itself, to provoke the gravest kind of balance of payments crisis.

Once again, the French are in the lead in the assault on the farm export flank of our payments-balance. Yet the French are well aware that the maintenance of the U. S. forces in Europe will become desperately difficult, if not absolutely impossible, if we run into a really bad balance of payments crisis.

Such is the evidence. Most American policymakers cannot believe the evidence means what it seems to mean, because they say Gen. de Gaulle "cannot be mad enough to wish to deprive Germany and France, too, of their only serious defense." But those who say this leave out of account Gen. de Gaulle's apparent estimate of the value of his home-made nuclear deterrent, which will be examined in a third report.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

TAX CUT TALK—Tax cut talk is far and away the No. 1 topic of conversation in Washington with most speculation centering around the final form of the reduction. President Kennedy's emphasis on taxes to the exclusion of all other matters is causing the subject to be examined more closely than any other White House recommendation of its kind in many years.

While it's awfully early in the legislative fight that's sure to come, it is possible to sketch out the general battle lines.

First, there's little doubt that the preponderant Democratic majorities in both Houses of Congress have the votes to put through a tax reduction bill eventually—and this is their inclination. However, it is just as clear that some of the revenue raising reforms asked by Kennedy do not suit many of these same Democrats. They'd rather see tax reduction without the political liability entailed in some of the recapture provisions.

Second, the Republican minority is planning its opposition strategy around two principal points—that there should be no tax cut without an equal cut in government spending, and that any tax cut should be distributed evenly among various income groups instead of being heavily weighted in favor of the lower brackets.

Right now, the form of the GOP opposition doesn't appear to be very potent, but the Republicans hope to pick up supporters from among the numerous special interest groups as their pet tax loopholes come under attack by the Democratic majority. There is a distinct possibility that the GOP hard core opposition can pick up enough strength from disillusioned Democrats to force major revisions in Kennedy's program.

Swallowing Difficult For Cardiospasm Patient

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

A middle-aged man was told he had cardiospasm. He was somewhat disturbed with the diagnosis because of the connotation that his heart might be involved. "My trouble comes when I try to swallow. The food has a hard time getting into my stomach and sometimes everything I eat comes up when lying down."

I asked him whether he had pain. "Yes, but not always. It is most noticeable over the breastbone and is worse when eating, especially when I'm upset."

The term cardiospasm refers to narrowing of the opening of the stomach. The entrance is known as the cardiac valve because it is the part of the stomach closest to the heart. The valve is made up of a ring of muscle that usually relaxes when liquids or food are swallowed. This fails to occur in cardiospasm, which in turn creates an obstruction at the bottom of the esophagus (gullet).

In some instances, the muscle of the valve is too tense to relax. This occurs more frequently in the nervous and emotionally disturbed. They improve when tranquility returns and they calm down.

But in others, the valve fails to get the message that food is on its way and needs the green light to enter the stomach. The basic cause centers about the nerves and nerve endings in the wall of the esophagus. The muscles that propel food along the passageway are not in harmony with those of the entrance to the stomach. Liquids, saliva, and nutrients are swallowed but hit a snag when they reach the lower end of the esophagus.

Cardiospasm is diagnosed via X-rays, which reveal the smooth beaklike narrowing of the gullet. The valve often can be relaxed with medicine. The diet also is important because semi-solid and warm foods pass through the partial obstruction with ease and with less pain. But when the spasm is severe the tightened valve must be dilated forcefully. Various instruments are used for this purpose and the results are gratifying. Surgery enters the picture only when mechanical stretching no longer is feasible.

REDUCING DURING PREGNANCY

Mrs. W. writes: Is it safe for a pregnant woman who is 30 pounds overweight to reduce?

REPLY

Yes, provided the reducing diet is planned carefully to include adequate proteins and other essential food elements. Additional thiamin (vitamin B1) and iron may be required. Overweight increases the possibility of complications.

HARMLESS MURMUR

R. W. writes: My 7 year old son's school has informed me the boy has a functional heart murmur. Our physician said it is harmless. Why did the school find it necessary to inform me of an unimportant condition?

REPLY

Because if the authorities had not reported this, you might have thought the school physician missed it and was, therefore, incompentent.

FLASH CONTROL

Mrs. M. writes: Is it necessary to tolerate hot flashes? Whenever I ask my doctor, he refuses to answer.

REPLY

Flashes can be controled with hormones. Your physician must believe they are not bothersome enough to warrant treatment. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on the menopause, which discusses this subject.

HALOS AND STARS

M. M. writes: I am 67 years old and whenever I look at the moon or street lights I see what looks like a green halo around them; and oncoming auto headlights look like six-pointed stars.

REPLY

Bring these manifestations to the attention of your eye physician. Colored halos may indicate glaucoma. A simple test will be needed to determine whether pressure within the eyball is normal or increased.

TOMORROW: Our renal filters.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

At a country auction, Mrs. Peggy Weidman won a rare old handblown whisky bottle with a bid of twenty-two dollars. An old farmer had watched her bidding with mounting disbelief. Two Schools Of Thought On Cuba Seeking To Influence President

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The power struggle is on inside the White House again. It's a continuation of the power struggle that's taken place off and on for some time over Cuba and is similar to the power struggle inside the Kremlin over the United States and war.

Essentially, the current power play is between two schools—the "don't push Moscow too far school" and the "push harder" school.

The don't-be-too-pushy school argues that JFK has won some amazing victories over Moscow; that Khrushchev, in turn, has won important victories over the hard core inside the Kremlin; that the USA, especially at a time when de Gaulle is flirting with Mr. K., shouldn't push its luck too far. This school points to the following major Khrushchev concessions:

Berlin—only last year, Khrushchev was proclaiming publicly the West must get out of Berlin; was demanding a new peace treaty with East Germany in 1962. Today, he has withdrawn the time limit, has come around to a United Nations branch in West Berlin with UN token troops as guardians. This is what Willy Brandt, tough Mayor of West Berlin also advocates.

Nuclear inspection—Khrushchev made the dramtic, important concession of accepting foreign inspection teams on Soviet soil. True, he wants only three or four inspections a year and we want more. But this could be a real breakthrough for peace.

Cuban retreat — Khrushchev's missile pull-out from Cuba, despite the Keating critics, was one of the most remarkable moves for better relations in this century. It was followed by the withdrawal of the Ilyushin 28 bombers. There was never any agreement to withdraw Soviet troops, even though this has been fanned up by the politicos.

Kennedy's Right Wing

Argument No. 1—In vital negotiations involving the pace of the world you have to give as well as take. Khrushchev has problems with his right wing, just as Kennedy has problems with his Keatings, Stennises, and Goldwaters. You have to give Khrushchev some arguments inside the Kremlin to show his right wing that his concessions have been justified. Otherwise, you push him back to a hard-core policy.

Argument No. 2—International negotiations never remain static. They ebb and flow. You have to take advantage of the currents when the tide for peace is running strong. The tide was running strong for the United States around Christmas. Now, de Gaulle has shifted the balance of power. Khrushchev can take advantage of that shift, patch up a deal with de Gaulle.

Argument No. 3—The Red Army can't be ignored. Ambassador Foy Kohler reported from Moscow right after the Cuban missile withdrawal that Marshal Malinowsky, the Minister of Defense, was furious; that Red Army leaders—reportedly responsible for the Cuban missile policy—were in the doghouse. If Khrushchev is pushed too far, they could come out of the doghouse.

Kennedy's Ex-Governors

Leaders of the "don't push too far" school are the ex-governors of the Kennedy administration: Assistant Secretary of State Averell Harriman, ex-governor of New York and ex-ambassador to Moscow; Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, ex-governor of Illinois; Ambassador Chester Bowles, ex-governor of Connecticut; and assistant Secretary G. Mennen Williams, ex-governor of Michigan, though he is now in Africa.

These advisers can be tough. They are the men who pushed through the tough policy toward Katanga in the Congo. Kennedy bought that policy and won. But they argue that there are times to be tough and times to hold out the olive branch. Now, they argue, is the time for the latter.

Actually, the man who leads the "push" school is the President himself. He has seemed terribly worried over Senator Keating's Cuban nit-picking. It's not Keating himself who has got under his skin, but the manner in which so many newspapers and so large a segment of the public got stampeded by the nit-picking. A lot of them seemed to believe Cuba is bristling with offensive weapons, ready to attack the USA.

This was what galvanized JFK into arranging that amazing two-hour televised press conference at which the Secretary of Defense went far beyond the advice of his intelligence experts in revealing official defense secrets.

Under The Dome

Most youthful looking of the new Senatorial crop is Indiana's Birch Bayh. One indignant elevator operator refused to take him up in the elevator reserved for Senators . . . . Dan Inouye, the one-armed Japanese Senator from Hawaii, has been overwhelmed with Senatorial courtesy. Once he stepped outside for fresh air; three Senators stopped their cars and offered to give him a lift between the Senate and House office buildings . . . . Vice President Johnson has been leaning to the new Senators in his famous friendly fashion, whispering words of advice at a two-inch range from their ears: "Work hard, tend to your committee assignments, and do your homework." . . . . Johnson made a big hit with the freshmen by inviting them to his home to meet the Cabinet officers, agency heads, and White House aides with whom they will be doing business.

Funnies In French

By John Crosby

PARIS

"Voyons un peu! Quelle viande Blondie voulait-elle? Il faut que je reflechises." That's good old dagwood in French, forgetting as he has forgotten thousands of times before what his wife sent him to the market to buy, but not forgetting to put it in the subjunctive. (Me, I can remember what I went to the market for; it's the subjunctive that bugs me.)

While Gen. de Gaulle is spurning our Polaris and trying to prevent McNeil and Libby or Chrysler from buying any more of French industry, kicking Macmillan in the chops, and otherwise trying to get us Anglo-Saxons to go away and let France be gloriously French, he's left one little hole in the dike. The comics. The comics are a brand-new bad Anglo-Saxon habit for the French. Your Anglo-Saxonized Frenchman no longer has the time to spend a three-hour lunch because he's so busy making money (American style) but he finds time to read "Blondie," "Tarzan," "Maggie and Jiggs" (who are known here as "La Famille Illico") and "Popeye."

It's a new bad habit. The funnies first appeared in France-Soir in 1949, just after the war. Some years ago a survey revealed that, out of France-Soir's 500,000 readers, half of them bought the newspaper largely because Rip Kirby had them entangled in some lousy adventure. France-Soir started with two comics, now has a pageful, nine in all. So have L'Aurore, Le Parisien, and Paris-Jour. Le Figaro and Le Monde are still haughtily above all that nonsense.

The comic strip is a great weapon for the Coca-Colonization of France because not only is it an American bad habit in itself, but what goes on in it is deplorably Anglo-Saxon. There's Dagwood in the meat market, forgetting what his wife sent him for. No Frenchman would go buy the meat! Well, he wouldn't once. These days you see a few Frenchmen in the supermarkets (another deplorable American institution) and his way there is paved by Dagwood. He's been conditioned by Dagwood into thinking that doing his wife's shopping is not as shocking bad form as he was thinking.

Or take Jiggs. Well, the last strip I saw, Jiggs was outside a hat shop into which Maggie was disappearing, saying: "Je ne resterai pas longtemps. Je vais just essayer quelques chapeaux!" And Jiggs is calling after her: "N'en achete qu'un! Je n'ai pas beaucoup d'argent bebelle." Then he tiptoes off and gets into a poker game with his buddies and Maggie is so immersed in trying on hats she doesn't even miss him.

Well now! In the first place, a Frenchman wouldn't be walking with his wife. If he were, he wouldn't let her go into that store. Of if he did, he'd go in and help her pick out the hat, and she wouldn't dream of going against his advice. He wouldn't tiptoe off; he'd stride off. And above all, surtout, he wouldn't go sneaking off to a poker game. He'd sneak off to a girl. What a deplorable idea to plant into a Frenchman's head, that one should steal away from one's wife to get into a poker game!

Maybe de Gaulle's right. The Anglo-Saxons are devilishly insular, shot through with incorrigibly uncontinental ways, and they don't belong in the Common Market until they mend them. Still, if he's going to stop this creeping Anglo-Saxonism, he'd better do something about the comics.

I just took a sweeping survey of the French working classes and discovered they're badly hooked on American comics. Well, what I did was I asked my secretary and found she reads all of them every day from "Li'l Abner" to "Pogo."

However, while she is being Anglo-Saxonized by "Blondie," I'm being Gallicized by the French comics, which are wildly, passionately, French. Most of the French comics are as firmly planted in the glorious French past as is de Gaulle himself. There's one in France-Soir called "Les Amours Celebres." Last time I looked, Richelieu in the court of Louis XV was having an affair with the wife of a banker and was saying: "I appeared, I pleased, I was loved, I was loving, drawn by charms that I have never found in any other woman." Now, if we could just teach Richard Tracy to talk like that! (Buying the meat, for heaven's sake! Stealing away from your wife to play poker!)

Just the other day in this particular comic, Louis XV (none of your small fry Dagwood, you notice) was saying to Richelieu, just after his lovely mistress, the Duchess of Chateauroux, had been poisoned, "I would never have found out I loved Marie Anne so profoundly. Her death alone woke me to the violence of my love."

If I were de Gaulle, I'd counterattack by planting a couple of French comics in the New York Daily News (if they ever get the darn thing running again) as retaliation for running "Blondie" in L'Aurore.

But, alas, greatness can't be shared.

Capitol Comment

by Rep. Charles Mathias

The new controversy over Cuba requires that all Americans should give their attention to this dangerous and vexing problem. At this time, it seems valuable to sum up what is known about the Cuban situation and to evaluate those facts which are not controversial or contradicted by any responsible source. In so doing, the situation becomes more clear and more understandable, although the solution is still difficult and elusive.

Shortly after the Congressional elections of 1962, I made a trip to New York to the United Nations and there met with Ambassador Adlai Stevenson and Ambassador Charles W. Yost, Deputy Representative of the U. S. in the Security Council. We discussed the question of on-site inspection of the long range and medium range missile bases in Cuba. At that early date, the outlook within the United States was pessimistic that such an inspection either by the United States unilaterally, the Organization of American States, or the United Nations would be allowed. This prospect was discouraging and in my judgement held the seed of much future trouble.

During the month of December, I went to Cuba and visited our Naval Base at Guantanamo Bay. While in Cuba, I had occasion to make a helicopter inspection of the entire perimeter of the Cactus Curtain and to discuss the military situation with respect to Cuba with military and intelligence officials both at Guantanamo Bay and at other bases in the Caribbean area. In addition to such briefings and conversations I took part in aerial surveillance flights of the shipping lanes and in "rigging" or photographing Russian shipping and in conducting a search for Russian submarine activity. In this way, I have actually seen the Russians going about their work of building up a Communist base in Cuba.

Many conscientious and patriotic Americans today differ on the details of the Cuban situation. Some facts are, however, uncontroversial and in fact generally agreed. Among these is the fact that the Russians are in Cuba in force and with no apparent intention of leaving in the immediate future. It is further agreed that the Russians who are in Cuba are not ground troops or labor battalions but are in fact highly trained technicians who are manning one of the most sophisticated Red defense systems that exist anywhere in the world outside of the Soviet Union. It is obvious that such skilled technicians could easily be transferred from one job in the area of technological warfare to another. These Russians must be considered to be potentially "offensive" despite the fact that the job that they may presently be doing can be called defensive in the narrow sense.

There is no universal agreement that all long range and medium range missiles have been the consensus of the informed withdrawn from Cuba, although persons with whom I have talked is that such missiles have been removed by the Russians. It will be remembered, however, that photographs which appeared in the press during the time of removal were usually captioned as "Missile Shapes" and this was accurate reporting since no American actually inspected the deck cargo which was purported to be the offensive missiles and the long range bombers. It is generally agreed that the Russians have imported into Cuba and have mounted for use some short range "defensive" missiles and have set up an establishment capable of maintaining a missile system. All of the elements necessary to the maintenance of this system are being provided.

It is also undisputed that the Russians are supplying to the Cubans both airplanes and naval craft which might be characterized as defensive or offensive according to their employment.

In summary it is perfectly clear that the Russians are completing in Cuba a well-defended, if not impregnable, bastion of Communism 90 miles off our coast. What was an undefended tropical island a few years ago is now an island fortress of formidable dimensions. Although we do not suffer any immediate aggressive action originating from behind the Cactus Curtain, yet we are unable to find out precisely what is happening in Communist Cuba.

Thus, the true tragedy of the Bay of Pigs now becomes apparent. In the larger sense that tragedy is not the death and anguish suffered on the beach, much as we respect those who made these sacrifices for freedom. On the contrary, the tragedy for our country and for the Western Hemisphere is that the decision to go forward at the Bay of Pigs, without the resolution to complete the job, produced results that are proving to be increasingly damaging for all the Americas. That mistake left available to the Communist conspiracy an attractive and strategic base in the Western Hemisphere and, at the same time, gave to the Communist conspirators a logical excuse to make it their business to take advantage of the excuse which we had ineptly given them to enter the Western Hemisphere and reinforce and fortify their new possession in the West .

Once this sequence of events had run its fatal course, the irresolution at the Bay of Pigs became a truly momentous error. To have tried and failed at the Bay of Pigs has brought upon us that unfortunate situation which cannot now be remedied by a patriotic band of Cuban refugees returning to their homeland under arms.

It is clear that concerted economic and diplomatic action is initially necessary. I personally advocate a complete investigation by a joint committee of the Congress of our entire Cuban policy from the rise of Castro as a rebel leader until the present time. I believe that the object of this investigation should be the formulation of a consistent, firm and successful Cuban policy rather than seeking our political scapegoats. I think it is then vitally necessary that we should frame our foreign policy to those ends which will make it possible for us to gain the support of the rest of the Hemisphere and of our free allies in those forceful measures which will demonstrate to the Soviet Union that it is unprofitable to continue to maintain even a "defensive" base in Cuba and which will ultimately bring about an opportunity for self-determination by the people of Cuba.

Foil Wraps Open-Face Sandwiches

We've long cherished ready-to-serve meats for convenience in making tasty lunch-box sandwiches. But that's only the beginning of the uses for these handy meats. With a variety of them in your refrigerator you're ready for any number of serving needs . . . whether it's a club luncheon, a family meal, or a more elaborate party with canapes and hors d'oeuvres.

Meat Salad Hideaways will be a big success with the gang at any casual gathering. Prepared in smaller quantities for your family, but with enough for seconds, these open-faced sandwiches will be a welcome treat for Sunday night supper.

Canned luncheon meat is chopped and combined with cheese, olives, eggs and onion. Mayonnaise and catchup is blended in and the mixture is spread on frankfurter buns. These sandwiches are ideal for lunch, supper, parties and snacks. After a quick 10 minutes in a hot oven, they're ready to satisfy any hungry appetite.

Meat Salad Hideaways

- 1 can (12 ounces) canned luncheon meat, finely chopped
- ½ cup grated cheddar cheese
- ⅓ cup chopped stuffed olives
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- 2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
- 3 tablespoons mayonnaise
- 3 tablespoons catchup
- 12 frankfurter buns

Combine meat, cheese, olives, onion, egg, mayonnaise and catchup. Mix well. Spread each bun with approximately ⅓ cup mixture. Wrap each sandwich in foil and bake in a hot oven (400° F.) for 10 minutes. Yield: 12 sandwiches.

Week's Food Economies

The discriminating shopper will find markets have much to offer in every line of foodstuffs. It may mean an adjustment in menu plans to make the best buy on the basis of quality and price, says Virginia L. McLuckie, food economist in the Baltimore office of the University of Maryland Department of Markets.

Because of consumer preferences and demand beef is the most popular of all meats. Present beef supplies are heavy, particularly of the fed cattle, which generally means higher quality. In selecting beef, look for lean with firm, fine texture or grain, velvety in appearance, of uniform bright color ranging from bright red to a slightly darker shade. Look for a large amount of meat in proportion to bone. In the fat look for firm, creamy white evenly distributed over the exterior and streaked through the lean, called marbling. Marbling contributes to juiciness and tenderness. The bone should be red and porous.

The cost per serving is a more realistic guide to economy than price per pound. Watch for specials in beef in both steaks and roasts. Other good protein buys include fryer chickens, and Grade A eggs.

The produce items on the best buy list includes carrots, onions, white and sweet potatoes. Tender green vegetables should be selected on quality as prices are generally firmer.

In process vegetables, canned corn supplies are record large. Since this is a shelf item, prices may not show a drastic change, but many retail stores are having special features on canned corn.

Specials on frozen vegetables are attractive. Fruit selections on the best buy list include apples, bananas and canned peaches. Grapefruit is the best fresh citrus buy. Florida strawberries are available with prices attractive. Hothouse rhubarb that is a beautiful pink in color is coming mostly from Michigan.

African elephants feed 16 hours out of 24. Their menu consists of foliage, grass canes, fruits and bark.

Swiss Steak, Mushrooms

(Makes 6 servings)

- ½ cup flour
- Salt and pepper
- 2 pounds round steak, cut 1-inch thick
- 3 tablespoons bacon drippings or other fat
- 1 medium-size onion, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, chopped (optional)
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 1 (8-oz.) can tomato sauce
- ½ cup sherry
- 1 (8-oz.) can mushroom stems and pieces (undrained)

Mix flour with salt and pepper. Pound mixture into steak on both sides, using a hammer, a wooden mallet or the edge of a heavy plate. Cut steak into serving-size portions. Heat bacon drippings in a large, heavy skillet or a Dutch oven; brown pieces of steak nicely on both sides. Add all remaining ingredients, season with salt and pepper. Cover and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 1½ hours, or until steak is tender. Turn and baste steak occasionally, and add a little water if needed to keep gravy from becoming too thick.

Veal Cutlets, Ham Make Menu News

Is veal included very often in the meals at your house? If not, try serving it soon for a refreshingly new main dish. The mild, delicate flavor of veal will be a real treat for many occasions.

Veal Divine is an appealing version of veal round steak which is cooked in a sauce of mushroom soup and cheddar cheese. It's bound to be popular with your family. The round steak is cut into serving-size pieces, or cutlets, and breaded.

Veal is tender, but lacks fat and is best when roasted, braised or cooked in liquid. To the homemaker, this means that veal, except roasts, needs long, slow moist heat cookery until cooked well done.

This veal dish is first browned, then braised in mushroom soup. Cheese is sprinkled on top of the meat near the end of the cooking time.

Veal Divine

- 2 veal round steaks, cut into 6 pieces (6 cutlets)
- 1 egg, beaten
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- ⅔ cup dry bread crumbs
- 3 tablespoons lard or drippings
- 1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed mushroom soup
- ¾ cup water
- 3 slices "boiled" ham, cut in half
- ½ cup grated cheddar cheese
- Paprika

Pound steaks on both sides. Mix together egg, salt and pepper. Dip veal in egg mixture and then in crumbs. Brown in lard or drippings. Add water to mushroom soup and mix well. Pour soup over veal. Cover tightly and simmer on top of range or bake in a slow oven (300° F.) for 45 minutes. Remove cover. Place ½ slice ham over each veal cutlet. Sprinkle cheese over ham. Cover and continue cooking until ham is heated through and cheese is melted, about 10 minutes. Sprinkle with paprika. 6 servings.

Pork Roast Crowned With Spicy Glaze

As a pleasant mealtime change, your family will enjoy a pork roast, especially when it's attractively adorned with Spicy Apple Glaze.

Remember that pork should always be cooked well-done. Home economists recommend a meat thermometer to insure the correct degree of doneness. Pork should be cooked to an internal temperature of 185 degrees F.

Then for that extra treat, spread the spicy glaze on the roast 20 to 30 minutes before the end of the roasting time.

Pork Loin Roast-Spicy Apple Glaze

4 to 6-pound pork loin roast
Salt and Pepper
Spicy Apple Glaze

Have backbone removed from loin. Season. Place fat side up on rack in open roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so bulb reaches center of thickest part. Do not cover. Do not add water. Roast in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 3 to 4 hours, or until roast meat thermometer registers 185 degrees F. Allow about 35 to 40 minutes per pound for roasting. During the last 20 to 30 minutes of roasting time, spread Spicy Apple Glaze over meat and return to oven to finish roasting.

Spicy Apple Glaze

- 1 cup chopped canned apples
- ⅓ cup apple juice
- ⅓ cup cinnamon candies
- ¼ teaspoon ginger
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice

Drain apples. Measure apple juice. If necessary, add water to apple juice to make ⅓ cup. Combine apples, juice, cinnamon candies, ginger and lemon juice. Cook slowly, stirring occasionally, until thickened, for 12 to 15 minutes. Yield: ¾ cup glaze.

Frying onion rings? Add some green pepper rings! Prepare the green pepper and onion the same way: dip in seasoned flour, then in milk; drain slightly, dip in the seasoned flour once more and fry in deep fat that's been heated to 375 degrees.

Spark Lenten Menus With Puffy Cheese Fondues

Lenten meals may also be economy meals, not the least of which make use of plentiful dairy foods. Typical are cheese fondues, a variation of which is made with layers of flaked tuna.

Here's a main dish the whole family will like . . . . light enough for even the youngest child, yet sturdy enough for a hungry man or boy.

The following recipe calls for Vienna bread, though regular baker's bread, a day or two from the oven will work as well.

TUNA FONDUE

- 1 large onion, sliced
- ¼ cup butter
- 12 ½-inch slices Vienna bread, bread, or enriched white bread
- 3 eggs
- 3 cups milk
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 12-ounce can tuna, drained and flaked
- ½ pound Swiss cheese, shredded (2 cups)
- ¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- Paprika

Slice onion, separate into rings and saute in butter until soft. Spread 1 side of bread slices with a small amount of butter. Beat eggs slightly, add milk, mustard, Worcestershire sauce and salt and blend. Place 4 slices of bread in single layer in buttered 1½-quart casserole, trimming crusts if necessary. Top with layers of one-third of onion rings and melted butter, tuna and Swiss cheese. Repeat to make 2 more layers. Pour egg mixture over top. Top with Parmesan cheese and paprika. Cover. Chill at least 1 hour or over night, if possible. Thorough chilling makes the fondue light and puffy. Bake uncovered at 350° for 45 minutes or until puffed and golden. Serve at once. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Double the interest in sweet potatoes by beating the cooked potatoes smooth with thin cream and a bit of sherry. Finish off the seasoning with butter, salt and a little powdered ginger.

Serve a spicy hot fruit drink during the winter evenings ahead. For a refreshing light one, heat apple juice with whole cinnamon sticks and cloves. Remove spices, pour in muscatel to taste and bring to simmering.

Dried Beef With Sweet Potatoes

Creamed Dried Beef — Southern-Style comes by its name rightfully, for it's served with browned sweet potatoes. As you travel south, the popularity of sweet potatoes increases.

Dried beef, or chipped beef as it is sometimes called, may be fashioned into many different dishes. For other combinations, you could serve it with macaroni, baked potatoes, curried rice, popovers or toast. Dried beef adds extra protein and appetite satisfaction to scrambled eggs.

Dried beef comes from a lean beef cut. It is cured, oven-dried to remove the moisture, then sliced wafer-thin. Serve it for breakfast; serve it for lunch. It's delicious any time.

Creamed Dried Beef—Southern-Style

1 jar (4 ounces) dried beef
2 tablespoons lard
¼ cup flour
2 cups milk
3 to 4 cooked sweet potatoes
⅓ cup butter or margarine
½ cup brown sugar
Parsley, if desired

Brown dried beef slightly in lard. Add flour and mix well. Add milk, stirring constantly, until thickened. Slice sweet potatoes lengthwise. Spread with butter or margarine, sprinkle with brown sugar, and place in a hot oven (400° F.) to brown. To serve, place creamed dried beef in center of platter and surround with browned sweet potatoes. Garnish with parsley, if desired. 6 servings.

Its An Unusual Dish

Meat loaf recipes are more numerous than anyone can name. You probably have your particular favorite. But why not try a new recipe for a change . . . perhaps one with ingredients you've never tried in meat loaf?

Indian Meat Loaf is a new idea for a ground meat dish. The unusual ingredients are corn meal and cream-style corn which give the meat loaf its name. The herb, sage, adds zest to the flavor.

Both ground beef and ground pork are used. Meat loaves prepared with different meat combinations provide a wide variety of delicious meat flavors.

Indian Meat Loaf

1 pound ground beef
½ pound ground pork
1 egg
½ cup corn meal
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon sage
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup cream-style corn
1¼ cups canned tomatoes

Combine all ingredients, mixing well. Pack into a 5-9-inch loaf pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) for 1½ hours. 6 to 8 servings.

Heavenly Angel Food Cake

1 9 or 10-inch angel food cake
2 12-oz. jars strawberry preserves
1 cup heavy cream, whipped and sweetened

Slice the cake crosswise to make two layers. Spread preserves between the layers and on top. Frost the sides of the cake with the whipped cream.

Meat Loaves Set Theme For Valentine Meal

Just when mid-winter morale needs a boost, along comes February with plenty of opportunity for sprucing up meals.

On Valentine's Day take your cue from the romantic hearts and flowers theme. Set the scene with a main course of Valentine Meat Loaves. It's the extra touches that make a special meal.

The only difference between these and the usual meat loaf is that they're baked in heart-shaped salad molds instead of the regular loaf pan. When the little loaves have baked, unmold them and "pierce" with pimiento strip "arrows."

You'll find them quick to prepare for they bake just 25 minutes. This meat loaf recipe is deliciously seasoned by adding fresh pork sausage, Worcestershire sauce and onion to the ground beef. Grated carrots contribute to texture variety.

Valentine Meat Loaves

1½ pounds ground beef
½ pound fresh pork sausage
½ cup grated carrots
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ cup chopped onion
2 eggs, slightly beaten
Pimiento, if desired

Combine ground beef, pork sausage, carrots, seasonings, Worcestershire sauce, onion and eggs. Mix thoroughly. Pack into heart-shaped molds or a 9x5-inch loaf pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 25 minutes for the small molds or 1½ hours for the loaf. Garnish with pimiento "arrows," if desired. 6 to 8 servings.

Ground Beef And Catsup Make A Winning Team

After the excitement of the game or winter sports is over, or as a pre-outing build-up, settle down to a hearty hot supper. Everyone is hungry, exuberant, and stimulated, so be sure the menu is tasty, plentiful, and prompt.

Two basic ingredients for any occasion of late-night entertaining, Sunday supper, or before-the-game fare are catsup and ground beef—a winning team that happily takes on many guises. Here are two variations that have a bit of the familiar qualities of these ingredients, but add new appeal and party prettiness while boasting the ability of beforehand preparation and only last-minute touches.

The younger generation will go for the meat mixture on a bun as the main attraction for a record party, hayride refreshment or lunch, but company and family of all ages will respond to its tangy flavor and easy eating style. The glossy glazed meat ring is a fun version of a meat loaf that might make a date with any dinner menu.

Both the shape and the surprising apricot-catsup flavor of the glaze remove this beef ring from run-of-the-mill comparsions. It's simple to serve, can be made early in the day and partially cooked to be popped in the oven while the guests assemble. A big pot of homemade vegetable soup simmering on the range or in a big electric casserole is an appreciated starter than can be ready-on-arrival. Crispy French bread topped with garlic butter and parmesan cheese and a green salad complete the service. Don't forget mugs of hot coffee, they're a must!

Chocolate Caramel Oaties

½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup rolled oats

Cream together butter, sugar and vanilla. Sift in flour and salt. Add oats and mix well. Press mixture evenly into ungreased 9 x 13 x 2-inch pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Cool. Loosen from sides of pan and turn out onto board. Spread with Chocolate-Walnut Glaze.* When glaze is set, cut in 1 x 2-inch bars.

Yield: 4 dozen.

Pork Chop Pocket

When planning stuffed pork chops, purchase rib chops at least 1 inch thick. Cut the pocket into the rib side of each chop. If the chop has two rib bones, cut between them. Chops cut from this side hold the stuffing better. Be careful not to cut all the way through to the fat edge.

Bacon Curls

To add distinction to a serving platter of a breakfast entree, serve bacon curls. To prepare, loosely roll strips or half strips of bacon and fasten with wooden picks. Panbroil curls the same as bacon strips.

Senate Cloakroom

by Sen. J. Glenn Beall

An analysis of the President's proposed tax bill, ballyhooed as a boon, reveals that it would do great harm to a lot of people, including the elderly and disabled on pensions. The taxes on these people, under the President's plan, would be substantially increased. For example, a totally disabled person drawing a disability pension of $30 a week now pays no income tax at all, but under the President's proposed tax bill he would be taxed to the extend of $216 next year. A totally disabled man or woman drawing a pension of $100 per week would under the President's proposal, pay a $779 annual tax. Retired Government employes, including those who have worked for State and local governments as well as those who have worked for the Federal government, would all get tax increases under the President's bill if the pension was $900 a year or $7,000 a year or anywhere in-between. For example, a single retired Government worker at the age of 62, drawing a pension of $2,361 a year, pays no income tax at present, but under the President's proposal he would be forced to pay $213.76 a year.

As my good friend, Senator John Williams of Delaware, said the other day in the Senate, "It is ironical that this harsh treatment of these elderly people is proposed by an Administration which has expressed such loud sympathy for their plight." As for me, I don't want to see any more crocodile tears about the elderly in the eyes of the New Frontiersmen who have leaped to this opportunity to slug the elderly. You may be sure that I will oppose this cruel attack on the disabled and the Government retirees and all the other elderly people whom the proposed bill would injure.

The Administration's budget for Military expenditures would have been $13,000,000,000 bigger if the Armed Services had been allowed all they asked for. Secretary McNamara had instructed the several Services to submit their requests for what they felt was necessary. They came in with requests totaling over $64,000,000,000. These were trimmed to total the $51,000,000,000 which appears in the President's budget. There's nothing sacred about that 51-billion-dollar figure; no doubt it could be cut some more.

Americans in 1961 spent over 21 billion dollars on medical care. In the same year we spent nearly as much on recreation and spent somewhat more on such personal business expenses as bank service charges and legal services. And so, it would seem that Americans, as a whole, can, after all, afford the medical care they are getting.

The recent growth of voluntary health insurance is a remarkable development. Last year, more than 136,000,000 Americans, 75% of our total civilian population, had some form of voluntary protection. Now, it is true that not all of these programs pay all medical costs. It is also true that we have some people too poor to pay an insurance.

Against these considerations must be set the actual provisions of the proposal for the Federal medical care for the aged. It is far from comprehensive; it would not solve anybody's financial problems; in fact, compared with some of the voluntary programs, "Medicare" benefits look meager. Moreover, it would exclude some 3,000,000 people who are not eligible because they are not in the Social Security system and cannot get into it, and many of these are people in real need. It would appear that regardless of what is done about "Medicare" the medical care of the indigent and the chronic unemployables in our midst will still have to be provided by private and community assistance.

The proposed "Medicare" plan would increase the Social Security taxs of all who are on the roll, regardless of need. The cost of "Medicare" is unknown, but it is generally conceded that it could and probably would be staggering.

The compulsory feature of "Medicare" would narrow the choice for the wage-earner of today and would deprive him of income with which he might otherwise prepare for health and other problems of old age.

The question before Congress is not, and never has been, a choice between the "Medicare" scheme or no medical care at all.

In the light of the fantastic growth of private health insurance, are not those who insist that only Washington can do the job really living in the past?

It has been exposed that the Federal Houseing Administration in Washington approved a new Fort Worth, Texas, housing project for elderly for $4,467,000 mortgage insurance after it had been reported adversely by local FHA officials — and despite the fact that at the time of the Washington approval the FHA had on its hands more than 3,000 foreclosed, empty houses in the Fort Worth area.

It is felt throughout the world that the Russians gained and we lost in the Cuban affair, which, it is said, demonstrated two things: (1) Khrushchev's desire for peace; and (2) weakness on the part of the United States. In support of the first point, it is said that Khrushchev welcomed this grand opportunity to show the world that he is a peaceful man and was willing to go to great lengths to minimize the possibility of war. In support of the second point, it is said that President Kennedy accepted Communist aggression in the Western Hemisphere, at our very doorstep, in accepting Castro and the continued presence of Russian troops in Cuba. Furthermore, the announcement of the removal of missiles from Turkey and Italy barely two months after Khrushchev demanded that withdrawal smacks of bowing to Russia.

The Kennedy-Khrushchev agreement is given as the reason for De Gaulle's demonstrated loss of faith in NATO and his plan to make France an independent nuclear power. Clare Boothe Luce, famous writer, formerly Ambassador to Italy and an outstanding authority on international relations, in developing this line in a letter which she has just written me and which I have inserted in the Congressional Record, had this to say:

"De Gaulle understood, last October, that only one thing could convince Europe that the United States of America would risk even a limited encounter with Russian troops, and that was for America — after Khrushchev had taken away his missiles—to have invaded Cuba and cleaned out Khrushchev's 16,000 troops. This is why, no doubt, De Gaulle promptly offered us his moral and military assistance in the tense hours of the naval blockade. While he certainly knew that the U.S.S.R. would back down from nuclear war, and so would America, there was still a chance that the United States would show it was not afraid to make a limited war contact with 16,000 Cuban-based Russian troops in order to stop Communism in its own hemisphere. But when the United States of America went to the negotiating table with Khrushchev, and there accepted Castro's Cuba and the presence of Russian troops in Cuba, De Gaulle saw that even this hope had vanished, and that if France were from here out to find safety she must begin to rely on herself, and not on America."

After sending a parcel to relatives in Europe, a local family received a letter of thanks, which ended: "Please send more of those pills. We didn't know what they were until Cousin Lempi, who studied English, read the name for us. Then we gave them all to Uncle Paul, who suffers from rheumatism. He feels better now, and says it's the best medicine he ever took. If you don't remember the name of the pills, they're called Life Savers."

Highland Flings

1 cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
1 egg
3 teaspoons vanilla
2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1¼ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup rolled oats

Melt semi-sweet chocolate morsels over hot (not boiling) water. Remove from water. Cream together butter, sugar, egg and vanilla. Sift in flour, baking powder and salt. Add oats and mix well. Reserve 1 cup of the dough; chill. Add melted chocolate to remaining dough. Chill until firm enough to handle. Roll out chocolate dough between two sheets of waxed paper to 10 x 18-inch rectangle. Peel off top sheet of paper. Roll out reserved light dough between 2 sheets of waxed paper to 8 x 18-inch rectangle. Peel off top sheet of paper. Invert light dough on chocolate dough. Starting along 18-inch edge, roll up like a jelly roll. Wrap and chill several hours. Cut in ¼-inch slices. Place 1-inch apart on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 8 minutes.

Yield: 6 dozen.

Frozen Meat

Meat Buying Tip

When purchasing large cuts, have a few chops or steaks removed for another meal. A pork loin, leg of lamb or beef rib roast may have a few chops or steaks removed. This will save you from having too many leftovers and will add variety in the use of large cuts.

Make Most Of Meat

Gelatine Mold, Family Style

For special occasions, it is pleasant to use a decorative mold for dishes made with unflavored gelatine. Reliable unflavored gelatine goes into whips, chiffons, Bavarians, and similar dishes that all look attractive molded. But for making these recipes family style, you can use everyday utensils rather than molds: cake pans, ice-cube trays, coffee cans, custard cups, mixing bowls, or even paper cups.

Tops In Pops

Scotch Mallow Pops, made with delectable butterscotch morsels, are tops with youngsters. Combine one 6-ounce package (1 cup) butterscotch morsels with ½ cup peanut butter and 1 tablespoon shortening and melt over hot (not boiling) water, stirring well. Add 1 cup miniature marshmallows and stir till well coated. Spoon into 1½ ounce paper cups. Press wooden stick into each, chill till set, and remove from cups at serving time. Makes 18

Scallops For Dinner

Narrowing the choice down for other-than-meat meals can be fairly simple if the homemaker would bear in mind that fish and seafoods make tempting and nutritious alternatives as main dish features. One of the most attractive and palatable of the seafoods is scallops, with their bland sweet taste, meaty texture and pleasing pearly-hued appearance.

Scallops are generally a favorite. One of the most versatile of the seafoods, they're easily adaptable to a variety of preparations, lending to frequent use in the family menu. They team up well, too, with other foods now in plentiful supply, making for economical dishes.

Fried scallops, probably the most popular of all the scallop preparations, make a welcome main dish feature, particularly with a complement of French fries or mashed potatoes, an attractive green vegetable, and a tossed green salad enriched with slivers of cheese or sliced hard-cooked eggs. Broiled scallops are tasty, also, and equally good in the main dish. A scallop-rich Sea Tang Thermidor, Scallop Kabobs, and any number of scallop casserole dishes will also often rate calls for "seconds."

Should you be serving turkey or chicken for the meat meal of the day, scallops make an excellent poultry stuffing, virtually a feature item in itself. Or you might combine the scallops with bacon for other tempting meat-meal dishes.

Try this flavorful Sea Tang Thermidor for your luncheon or dinner main course one day soon. It's recommended by home economists of the U.S. Department of Interior.

2 quarts boiling water
¼ cup salt
1 can (4 ounces) mushroom stems and pieces, drained
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon powdered mustard
Dash cayenne pepper
2 cups milk
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
Grated Parmesan cheese
Paprika

Thaw frozen scallops. Cut large ones in half. Place in boiling salted water. Cover and return to the boiling point. Simmer for 3 to 4 minutes, depending on size. Drain and remove any shell particles. Cook mushrooms in butter for 5 minutes. Blend in flour and seasonings. Add milk gradually and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add scallops and parsley. Place in 6 well-greased shells or 5-ounce custard cups. Sprinkle with cheese and paprika. Bake in a hot open, 400°F., for 10 minutes or until cheese browns. Serves 6.

Swiss Steak Is For Family Or Company

Swiss steak needn't be relegated only to the family table. Add new trimmings and a dash to the flavor, and you'll create a dish appropriate for company fare.

Swiss steak is an old favorite when it comes to preparing the less tender beef steaks. Often round steak is used, but if you are really in a penny-pinching mood, select an arm or blade steak from the chuck.

Swiss Steak Supreme is braised with tomatoes, onion and Worcestershire sauce and served on rice with colorful green pepper rings. The secret in cooking any braised meat dish is never to hurry it. Long, gentle simmering results in a tender, delicious finished dish.

Swiss Steak Supreme

¼ cup flour
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Lard or drippings
1 onion, sliced
1 can (1 pound 4 ounces) tomatoes
½ teaspoon Worchestershire sauce
1 green pepper, cut in rings
3 cups cooked rice, if desired

Combine flour, salt and pepper. Dredge steak in seasoned flour. Brown in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Add onion, tomatoes and Worcestershire sauce. Cover tightly and cook slowly 2½ to 3 hours or until meat is tender. Add green pepper rings and continue cooking 5 minutes. Serve steak on rice, if desired. Garnish with pepper rings. 6 servings.

Walnut Glaze

1 6-ounce package (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate morsels
2 tablespoons shortening
⅓ cup maple-flavored syrup
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped California walnuts
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine semi-sweet chocolate morsels, shortening, syrup and salt in saucepan. Place over low heat, stirring constantly, until morsels are melted and mixture is smooth. Add vanilla. Stir in walnuts (if desired, reserve ¼ cup to springle on top).

The fastest bird in running on land is the emu of Australia. It has been known to travel at 30 miles an hour for 10 miles.

Nutty Information

Brazil nuts, ground, sliced, or chopped go into a variety of delectable pastries, appetizers, and main dishes. Keep in mind that 1 pound of Brazil nuts in the shell equals ½ pound shelled nuts; 1 pound shelled Brazil nuts equals 3 cups; 1 cup shelled nuts equals 1¼ cups coarsely ground nuts; 1 cup shelled nuts equals 1¼ cups sliced nuts; 1 cup shelled nuts equals 1 cup finely chopped nuts.

Meat Snacks

The practice of eating snacks has become an integral part of American food habits. Therefore, it's wise to provide snacks that are nutritious and satisfying as well . . . snacks which feature meat. Meat not only provides high quality protein, it also is an important source of the B vitamins, iron and phosphorus. Meat snacks make a valuable contribution to our daily nutritive needs

Pot-Roast Cookery

When preparing a beef pot-roast, use a small amount of liquid. Cover the meat tightly and cook slowly until tender, about 3 to 4 hours for a 3 to 5-pound pot-roast. The liquid should not boil. Never cover the meat with water, as is recommended in preparing stew. By using different liquids and seasonings, you can achieve many different flavor combinations.

Strip Mining, Education Bills Thrown In Hopper

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—A bill that would make strip mining a misdemeanor in West Virginia was introduced in the Legislature Wednesday along with a six-bill package dealing with various school regulations.

The strip mining bill, introduced by Sen. William Tompos, D-Hancock, provides for sentences of 72 hours in jail and a $100 fine for the first conviction, 10 days and a $250 fine for the second and six months in jail and a $500 fine for each additional conviction.

The education bills, submitted by Senate Education Chairman C. H. McKown, D-Wayne, and Minority Leader John E. Carrigan, R-Marshall, includes a measure that would require pupils to finish an academic year in which they reach their 16th birthdays.

Other new proposals would:

—Require a county school superintendent to supply the Romney Deaf and Blind Schools with the names of prospective students between the ages of 6 and 21.

—Require the use of warning signal lights on school buses to stops made for the purpose of letting children on or off.

Ryan is assistant cashier at the Farmers and Merchants Bank and is secretary of the Keyser club, a post he has held for four years.

Heart Fund Leaders Are Appointed

MIDLAND — Mrs. Raymond Thrasher, Heart Fund chairman for this community and the surrounding area, has announced the appointment of the chairmen who will assist in the 1963 campaign.

Active in community affairs, Mrs. Thrasher holds membership in the Midland Homemakers Club and the Valley High Boosters Club. The chairman is a veteran Heart Fund worker, having assisted in campaigns since 1956, and serving as community chairman since 1958.

Appointed by Mrs. Thrasher were Mrs. Elsie Durst, business chairman; Mrs. Jean Hanlin, Heart Sunday chairman for Ocean and National; Mrs. Josephine Michaels, Heart Sunday leader for Gilmore and Harpersville, and Mrs. Anna Lee Stott, Heart Sunday chairman for Klondyke and Woodlawn.

Mr. Thrasher has accepted appointment as plastic hearts chairman, while Mrs. Thrasher will head the drives in Midland proper and Knapp's Meadow.

The Heart Fund, Mrs. Thrasher said, fights strokes, heart attack, rheumatic fever, inborn heart defects, high blood pressure and many other related diseases.

The work of the Allegany-Garrett County Heart Association, she concluded, can be expanded only if the general public continues to back its aims with contributions during February—Heart Month.

Shepherd Snaps Bobcats' 15-Game Home Win Streak, 80-73

Rams Conquer FSTC For 10th Straight Time

Seven Consecutive Points In Closing Minutes Win Game

Coach Carl Hartman's Shepherd College Rams continued their hex over Frostburg State Teachers College in basketball when they broke the 15-game home floor winning streak of the Mountain City quint last night by the score of 80-73 before a packed house.

It was the Shepherdstown school's tenth straight victory of the series. Frostburg's last win over the Rams was in 1958.

The Bobcats suffered their last loss at home in the opening game of the 1962 season to Shepherd, then reeled off eight wins to close out the campaign and were 7-0 at home this season before bowing to the Rams last night.

Shepherd took an 8-1 lead early in the battle and stayed in front until Frostburg knotted the count at 22-all. It was nip and tuck the remainder of the half which ended with the Bobcats leading by two points, 37-35.

With 1:49 remaining in the game, Frostburg was trailing by a single point, 73-72. Then Shepherd put the game in ice by reeling off seven consecutive points on goals by Bill Wills and Joe Karononis, two free throws by Wills and one by Wayman Everly. "Hank" Winner scored a foul goal for Frostburg after the buzzer.

Shepherd played the last 11 minutes without the services of three starters. Scott Douglas fouled out with 15:13 remaining and Roscoe Dean exited on fouls with 12:08 to go. Then Danny Baker was forced to leave the game due to an injury.

Shepherd had three players in double figures, Douglas pacing the attack with 18 markers while Bill Thompson garnered 17 and Wills accounted for 16. The four Bobcats in double figures were George Lauder with 22, Winner 19, Bill Wiltison 16 and Jim Thompson 11.

The Rams had a 35-30 edge in field goals and sank 10 of 13 free throws. Frostburg meshed 13 of 19 charity tosses.

The win gave Shepherd an 8-8 log for the season. Frostburg suffered its third defeat against 12 victories.

DeBusschere Listens To Conley So Baseball Camp Is Secondary

By JERRY GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP)—Dave DeBusschere is a major league rookie in two sports. It's a fast-paced, busy double life and DeBusschere figures he's thriving on activity.

"The way I feel now," says DeBusschere, a Detroit Piston regular by winter and a Chicago White Sox pitcher—he hopes—by summer, "I'd like to play both sports against next year."

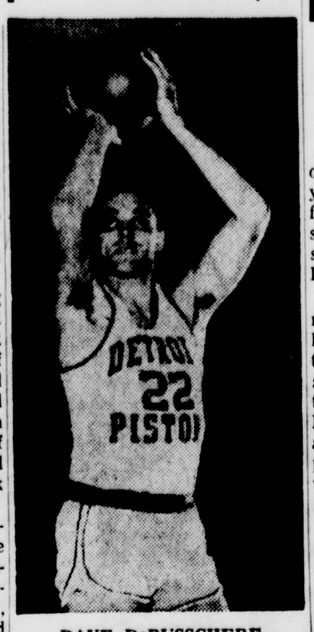
DeBusschere has been playing baseball and basketball without letup since he was graduated last spring from the University of Detroit. A year ago he established his school's career scoring record and made the third All America basketball team. By the end of May, DeBusschere had jumped from the campus to the White Sox bullpen.

He later was farmed to Savannah of the Sally League, where he posted a 10-1 record before returning to the White Sox in September. The baseball season over, DeBusschere promptly reported to the Pistons' National Basketball Association camp and made the club as a starter.

"I get plenty of rest," says DeBusschere, who lives with his family in Detroit during the basketball season. "And I really haven't missed not having a break between seasons. Why, if we play at home two or three times in a week, it's just like having a week off."

Camp Opens Feb. 20

When the Pistons' season ends in March—or April if they manage to survive that long in the NBA playoffs — DeBusschere intends to report immediately to the White Sox' camp at Sarasota, Fla. Manager Al Lopez says he's in line for a starting job with the Sox.



DAVE DeBUSSCHERE
"I'm Having Fun"

DAVE DeBUSSCHERE
"A Higher Class Sport"

"The White Sox open their early camp for pitchers Feb. 20," says DeBusschere. "I don't know how much of the early stuff I'll miss. But I suppose it'll be only the running and if my legs aren't in shape after being on them all winter, then I won't deserve to make it with Chicago."

Only one other athlete lives DeBousschere's gruelling double life. And Gene Conley, who's been playing basketball and baseball several years, was one of those DeBusschere consulted about the never-ending grind.

"Conley says he can't tell me how it will be," relates DeBusschere. "Guys keep telling me I can't do both, but how do they know? Have they tried it? Conley says it doesn't bother him. And up to now it hasn't bothered me. I'm having fun.

Legs Are In Shape

"Gene tells me it takes him eight days to get his arm in shape, to stretch the muscles and get used to throwing with a different motion. As far as legs are concerned, he says he's way ahead of the other pitchers even if he misses a month of spring training."

Conley plays his baseball with the Boston Red Sox, the team from which he disappeared for several days last summer. His basketball team is the New York Knickerbockers.

DeBusschere feels baseball carries fewer hardships, is less strenuous, for a two-sport athlete.

"There's no question that baseball is a higher class sport," says DeBusschere. "When we went to the West Coast with the White Sox we traveled in the first class section of the jets. With the Pistons it's air coach.

"They ought to let those baseball guys travel with a pro basketball team for a month. They wouldn't ever complain about baseball accommodations again."

Cicada Cops Columbiana Handicap

Win Worth $19,565, Royal Patrice 2nd

HIALEAH, Fla. (UPI) —Meadow Stable's Cicada, the 1962 3-year-old filly champion, made her first start in over three months a successful one Wednesday when she won the $30,100 Columbiana Handicap at Hialeah.

Cicada, the biggest money winner of her sex in thoroughbred history, carried 125 pounds over the seven furlongs in 1:23 4-5 as she won going away by almost two lengths over Royal Patrice. No other winner of the Columbiana has carried such a high import since Calumets' Mar-Kell was successful with 126 pounds in 1944.

Cicada, sent off at a little better than even money by the crowd of 21,181, stayed close to the leaders for the first half of the race as Red Belle set the early pace with Some Song holding second.

Johnny Rotz sent Cicada to the front as the pack entered the stretch and the bay daughter of Bryan G. galloped to the wire with ease. She wasn't pressed in the final furlong and returned a payoff of $4.60, $3.20 and $2.50.

Royal Patrice held second by a half-length over Old Hat, followed by Some Song, Pocosaba, Coup D'Etat and Red Belle.

Piedmont Is Winner Over Keyser In Overtime Battle, 65-63

Wanzel Jessie Hero In Lions' Thrilling Win

By TED TROXELL

Wanzel Jessie, a substitute who saw less than seven minutes of action, was the toast of Piedmont last night after sinking a tie-breaking field goal with one second left in an overtime period to give Piedmont's Lions a thrilling 65-63 victory over Keyser.

The dramatic triumph, viewed by a jam-packed house at the Piedmont gymnasium, kept the Lions in the running for the championship of the Potomac Valley Conference.

It was the 12th PVC win without a loss for the Lions, whose overall record is 16-1. They have two conference games left, with Moorefield and Southern, and will be heavily favored to win both and thereby finish with a 14-0 mark. Paw Paw, 9-0 in conference play, winds up against Wardensville on Saturday, February 23.

If the two clubs win their remaining games, as expected, they'll share the title. The championship is determined on the basis of final winning percentages.

Come From Behind

With slightly more than a minute to go in the regulation contest, they trailed by seven points. In the span of just 32 seconds the battling Lions came up with seven points, then prevented Keyser from going ahead in the final 39 seconds.

Tom Grove, who like Jessie was a substitute inserted into the line-up in the final period, hit for a three-point play with 1:11 remaining to cut Keyser's edge to four.

Eugene Taylor, an aggressive ballhawk who refused to quit, then engineered a steal and was fouled by Keyser's Charlie Nelson. Piedmont's hopes dimmed momentarily when Taylor missed the 15-foot attempt.

Taylor Hits Twice

A jump ball situation developed following Taylor's misfire and Piedmont controlled the tip. Taylor was fouled again, and this time came through twice to narrow the margin to 61-59 with 47 seconds left.

After the visitors put the ball in bounds, Grove swiped it away and drove for a tie-producing lay-up. Keyser got off one shot — a jumper by Turbin—but it was off the mark, sending the battle into an extra three-minute session.

With 56 seconds left, the Lions began setting up what turned into a breath-taking finish. The Piedmont crew was obviously going to hold the ball for a final shot which, if good, would put them ahead with no time left for Keyser to score the equalizer.

As the precious seconds ticked away, Taylor took aim from 25 feet, but his shot went off to the right and was rebounded by Grove. The latter's attempt from the side fell into the hands of Jessie, who put it up and in.

The ball had scarcely dropped through the netting when the buzzer sounded and turned the gymnasium into a scene of bedlam, as overwhelmed Piedmont fans rushed onto the court.

Replaces Stevenson

Jessie, the hero of it all, entered the game with 3:42 remaining in the fourth period. He came in as a replacement for Ray Stevenson, who was the second Lion cager to foul out. Keith Russell exited with 56 seconds left in the third quarter.

Not until late in the third frame did Keyser enjoy the lead, but once grabbing the edge, they didn't surrender it until Grove tied things up in the final minute.

A jump shot by Nelson with 2:06 to go in the third frame pushed Keyser in front 43-42, and the visitors stretched the advantage to seven points on several occasions before Piedmont's last-minute rush.

While Jessie contributed the most memorable field goal of the evening, it was Taylor who provided the heroics over the long run. A demon on defense, he harassed the Tornado cagers constantly, led both teams in rebounding and tossed in 21 points.

Patterson Scores 17

Larry Patterson had 17 points for the Lions, 13 of them in the first half. The sophomore forward also grabbed off nine rebounds, sharing honors with Taylor in that department. The latter snared ten, as Piedmont held a 30-26 edge overall.

Turbin was the game's high scorer with 23 points, 11 of them coming at the free throw stripe in 13 chances. The visitors, who trailed Piedmont in field goals 26-21, converted 21 of 26 foul tries to the Lions' 13-19. Tom Condron, who at one stretch of the third quarter made five straight shots from the floor, had 14 points, and Dick Criser collected ten.

The setback was only the third of the year for the Golden Tornado, and second at the hands of Piedmont. The Lions used a fourth quarter spurt to whip Keyser, 62-39, two weeks ago.

Pitt Panthers Post 69-68 Win Over West Virginia

Losers Play Without Thorn; Generalovich, And Catlett Ejected

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — Paul Kreiger calmly tossed in two pressure - packed foul shots with 12 seconds remaining to give Pitt a 69-68 win over West Virginia here Tuesday night, the Panthers first victory over the Mountaineers in 14 games.

Dave Roman, a hot-shooting guard, led the Panther scoring with 22 points, followed by Kreiger with 17, Brian Generalovich with 12 and Dave Sauer with 11.

West Virginia, playing without the services of Rod Thorn who is recovering from an attack of influenza, was led by Jim McCormick with 22 points while Mike Wolfe added 14 and Tom Lowry 12.

The game had just about everything imaginable, including several comebacks by the scrappy Panthers and the ejection of Generalovich and Gale Catlett of West Virginia after a brief sparring session.

West Virginia Coach George King said the fight between Catlett and Generalovich came about because "the game got out of hand.

However, Pitt Coach Bob Timmons saw the outbreak in an entirely different light.

"Catlett threw the ball in Generalovich's face and Brian only took his own part and yet they were both thrown out of the game," Timmons said. "I can't see why a boy can be penalized for defending himself. Any American athlete would do the same."

Duke Cops 11th Straight In ACC

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) —Duke's third-ranked Blue Devils, outscored by 14 points from the floor, took the lead for good late in the first half and then used a free throw cushion at the end for a 79-74 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball victory over Virginia.

The victory was Duke's 12th in a row, ran the Blue Devils' ACC record to 11-0 and their over-all slate to 18-2. Virginia, the ACC's basement club, is 2-9 in the league play and 4-17 over-all.

Art Heyman led the Blue Devils with 27 points, 15 coming from 18 trips to the free throw line. The Blue Devils hit on 27 of 33 shots at the foul line to only eight of 15 for the Cavaliers.

State Coach Mark Cardwell went all the way with his starting five while Tech used nine men. Joe Watson backed up LeFevre in the scoring column with 13 markers.

METS SHOW 41 WINS

NEW YORK (AP) — The winter roster of the New York Mets shows their pitchers with a 41-98 record for major league decisions in 1962. That's better than the Mets did last season. They won only 40 of their 160 games in their first season in the National League.

SPORTS SPUTTERINGS

By Walter L. Johns, Central Press Sports Editor

THE SENTENCING of master basketball "fixer" Jack Molinas, former basketball "star"? himself, to 10 to 15 years in prison should serve once again as a vivid reminder to all players and coaches and school officials of the need for continued vigilance in this sport and others.

The gambling element, which Molinas represented in as nasty a case as has ever hit the American sports scene, may lie low for awhile, but you can be sure it won't be stamped out even though Molinas drew a prison sentence.

Out of Seattle just the other day came a story of threats of physical harm and a $300 bribe offer in connection with a Washington State CURLING match!

None of these stories, perhaps, is surprising, excepting maybe the curling bribe attempt, but all, and the sentencing of the cage fixer, accents again and again the necessity of repeated warnings to players in all sports about the consequences of listening to, or accepting, bribes to cheat or throw or "fix" sporting events.

• • •

BASEBALL has kept a close tab on its personnel but even the national sport was hit with nastiness in that "Black Sox" scandal more than 40 years ago.

Boxing has been permeated by the gambling element over the years, has drawn headlines with reports of fixed fights and betting coups.

Horse racing, which has done a fine job in policing its sport with saliva tests, film patrols and stringent fines, has been involved time after time with cases of doped horses and reports of fixes.

• • •

YOU CAN'T wipe out gambling, for we all like to gamble whether it's on the weather or on some sporting event, and the professional gamblers halt at nothing to make a kill.

But it is the duty of all to maintain constant vigilance. And it's the duty of the lawmakers to make it as rough as possible on those who try to corrupt the players or others involved in any sport.

Frank Carbo Conviction Affirmed

3 Others Involved, Fifth Ordered Freed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals affirmed Wednesday the convictions of Frankie Carbo, former underworld boxing czar, and three others for conspiracy and extortion. A fifth man was ordered freed.

The men were convicted in a Los Angeles Federal District Court jury trial May 30, 1961, for attempting to muscle in on earnings of Don Jordan when Jordan was world welterweight champion in 1958.

Carbo, 57, received a 25-year prison sentence and was fined $10,000. Following his trial he was sent to Alcatraz pending his appeal after the court was told that his presence in Los Angeles might lead to harm for Jackie Leonard, a fight promoter who was a major witness at Carbo's trial.

Others whose sentences were upheld were Frank (Blinky) Palermo, 55, Philadelphia boxing manager, 15 years and $10,000 fine; Truman Gibson Jr., 48, Chicago attorney and former president of the now-defunct International Boxing Club, 5-year suspended sentence and $10,000; and Joseph Sica, 49, Los Angeles sports promoter, 20 years and $10,000.

The court, in its 75-page opinion, reversed the conviction of Louis Tom Dragna, 40, West Covina, Calif. It ordered the lower court to enter a dismissal for him. He had been sentenced to five years.

CHURCH PROBLEM

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new, nationwide survey of 4,000 Protestant clergymen shows 43 per cent of the ministers disagree with their parishioners and church leaders about policy and administration of their churches —and that one-third of these ministers are unhappy enough about this situation to leave their parishes.

BEST-SELLING PAPERBACK

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The paperback edition of Harper Lee's Pulitzer Prize winning novel, "To Kill a Mockingbird," has been chosen the 1962 Paperback book of the Year by Bestsellers Magazine.

The novel has been put on the screen as a Pakual-Mulligan production starring Gregory Peck for Universal release.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 239 The U. S. Navy's first armored capital ship went into action a century ago, as soon after its launching and fitting at the Merrick & Sons yard at Philadelphia in 1862 as its crew could be trained at the engines and guns. The craft was the 3,500-ton New Ironsides, described by a British war correspondent as "a screw sloop of the British warship Warrior type." Her 232-foot length was protected by 4½ inches of rolled iron armor. This protection of the wooden hull sloped at 17 degrees and extended three feet below the waterline. Sixteen 11-inch Dahlgren smoothbores and two eight-inch Parrott rifles were her chief armament. At the bow was a formidable wrought iron ram.

The warship's screw, which drove her at six knots, was turned by a pair of horizontal steam engines, and she had masts for sails to be used when not in action. She unquestionably was the most powerful ship afloat the autumn of 1862.

The New Ironside's armor was to have its decisive test while Commodore Dupont's flagship in the repeated attempts to break into Charleston in 1863. The Union goliath was attacked by one of the Confederate "Davids" or submersibles, and escaped disaster. (A less well protected U. S. warship was sunk at Charleston by a Confederate ancestor of today's submarines.)

Meanwhile, the Navy had contracted for a much bigger ironclad. Construction on it, the 373-foot Dunderberg, began at New York in 1862. She was designed to carry 21 big guns and move at 15 knots. The Dunderberg was not completed until 1865, when she was sold to the French navy, in which she served as the Rochambeau.

—Clark Kinnaird

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 240 One former "First Lady" was locked up as insane on the petition of her eldest son. That was Mary Todd Lincoln. The astonishing story of her committal, successful struggle for release and recovery of control of her fortune from her son is related in a new book, "The Trial of Mrs. Abraham Lincoln," by Homer Croy (pub. by Duell, Sloan & Pearce).

The beginning of Mrs. Lincoln's pronounced instability was associated with grief over the death of her third son, William Wallace, at the age of 12, a century ago this year. There was other reason besides that and the war for her to be depressed that year, 1862. Slanderous rumors circulated that she was in seditious communication with her Confederate kinfolk. Four of her Kentucky brothers were in the Confederate forces. One brother, Dr. George Todd, declared openly in Richmond that Lincoln was "one of the greatest scoundrels unhung." Members of the Senate Committee on the War eventually met to consider charges of treason against Mrs. Lincoln. Though uninvited, Mr. Lincoln made an unparalleled appearance by a president before a congressional committee, to deny that any member of his family had treated with the enemy.

"Willie's" death at the White House followed Mrs. Lincoln's loss of her second son, Edward Baker, who passed away in Springfield when four.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — 1963 has started out very promising for Chuck Connors. He's purchased "The Confessions of St. Augustine," an original script by John Wilder and Jerry Ziegman, which will be one of the seven picture commitments under the contract with Lew Wasserman at Universal Studio. Chuck starts out with the blessing of Bishop Fulton J. Sheen on this undertaking. In fact, he recently received a letter from the Most Rev. Sheen expressing his high approval of the subject as a film.

A former baseballer, Chuck has just finished the final episode of "The Rifleman," on which he starred for five years. All that time Chuck had been riding a horse called Razor. When this was cancelled for Chuck's new series "Arrest And Trial," the producers presented him with Razor. He'll take the horse to Texas where he will tour as the star of a rodeo show for two months.

The New York newspaper strike has hit Broadway shows a terrific blow—no reviews and no publicity. But Harry Guardino, starring with Kim Stanley in William Inge's shocker, "Natural Affection" tells me via long distance:

"Despite mixed reviews on radio and TV, we are sold out so far in advance that Anne (his wife) is coming back to the coast to pick up our two children. We'll be here through the spring for certain—and long before that time this strike should be over."

I must say Guardino is one of the most polite actors I have ever known. I seldom mention his name that he doesn't write or call to thank me—and that's not a habit in the profession I can tell you.

Steve Brody just finished wrapping up a package for a western in color to start this month. Inside this package is "The Gun Hawk," which will star Rory Calhoun, Ruta Lee, Rod Cameron and that teenage singing idol Ron Lauren.

Rory is very happy about making another Hollywood movie, having turned down seven offers in Europe. But after the last two he made overseas, he's home to stay. He's just finished making a TV pilot "Luxury Liner." Remember Rory had a very successful series "The Tex", which ran for a long time.

While on the subject of Ruta Lee, who made her motion picture debut with Frank Sinatra in "Soldiers Three",—in which she was very good—she'll play the modern day Maid Marian in "Robin and the Three Hoods", which Frank will start this summer. Frankie and Dean Martin will play two of the "hoods".

Ruta is taking her parents to Lithuania, hoping to bring her grandmother, who has been behind the Iron Curtain, back to Hollywood to spend her remaining days. Romantically speaking, Ruta is seriously dating Rusty Cobb, Tulsa, Oklahoma, oil man.

NEW DISNEY PIC

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Leon Ames and Stuart Erwin are featured in the production of "Merlin Jones" now being filmed at the Disney Studio.

Dal McKennon, Norman Crabowski and Alan Hewitt have also been set for key roles in the comedy-adventure starring Tommy Kirk and Annete.

Her Brother's Keeper

No. 26852 Equity, In the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Filed February 5, 1963.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The bill states that the parties were married in Hagerstown, Md., in 1938, and four children were born, all of whom are of full legal age except one, who resides in Washington with a married sister. School Board To Seek Raise For Teachers

Other Personnel To Be Considered

The Allegany County Board of Education yesterday decided to ask the County Commissioners for a pay increase for teachers and other personnel of the public schools system.

Ralph R. Webster, secretary of the board, was instructed to work out details for the proposed pay boost and submit them to the County Commissioners for budget consideration later this year.

Last month, representatives of the Allegany County Teachers Association presented a detailed report to the commissioners in which they requested a $700-a-year across-the-board salary increase for the county's 680 teachers, plus other fringe benefits.

The teachers' proposal would have raised the salary scale from the present $4,300-$6,400 range to $5,000-$7,100. The maximum is reached in the 12th year.

The plan endorsed by the Board of Education yesterday calls for a minimum of $4,800 and a maximum of $7,000, to be reached in the 15th year instead of the 12th year.

Supervisors, secretaries, clerks, custodial employes and cafeteria workers also would be taken into consideration. The school board decided not to take any action yesterday on fringe benefits.

If the Board of Education's proposal is accepted by the County Commissioners, only three Maryland counties would have higher beginning salaries and three that already are paying $4,800 would be tied with Allegany. Nine counties would have higher maximum salaries.

Could Compete Better

At the teachers' meeting with the County Commissioners last month, Louis V. Shinnamon, president of the commissioners, said he could make no specific commitment on the requested increase, but that the commissioners would "do the best we can."

Mr. Shinnamon pointed out that the commissioners probably won't have a clear idea whether funds will be available for salary increases until March 1. The county levy must be adopted by Tuesday, April 2.

Explains Soil Loss Formula

Work unit conservationists from three counties listen as M. D. Fussell, state soil conservationist from College Park, explains a new soil loss formula which will be included in a technical guide for the counties. Left to right are William W. Nace, Garrett county, Paul Anderson, Washington county, Martin M. Gordon, Allegany County, and Mr. Fussell. Personnel from the work unit offices of the three counties met here to complete the guide which will contain the soil history of the counties.

Hospital Fund Drive Reaches $325,000 Mark

Lewis J. Ort, general chairman of the $500,000 drive for the new Sacred Heart Hospital, told workers in the Healing and Mercy Division yesterday that more than $325,000 had been received to date.

Mr. Ort's announcement was made at a meeting of the division yesterday at the Fort Cumberland Hotel.

The general chairman urged workers to make the drive the quickest and most successful campaign ever conducted in this area. Mr. Ort said this will be possible if drive workers see to it every citizen is given the opportunity to help.

Big donations are coming in, Mr. Ort said, but the victory can't be won until every giver in the $1,000 to $5,000 bracket has had his full opportunity to participate.

Mr. Ort also said the drive must go way over the top to compensate for shrinkage that will be encountered through deaths, illnesses, transfers, furloughs and other eventualities.

COLLECTION DAY TODAY

Soil Service Prepares Guide For 3 Counties

Soil Conservation Service personnel from Garrett, Washington and Allegany Counties met with M. D. Fussell, state soil conservationist of College Park yesterday in the Allegany County work unit office in the Post Office building.

The purpose of the meeting was to complete work on the new technical guide for the three counties, which has been in preparation the last several years.

The guide covers standard and specific soil descriptions, soil survey legend, soil capability cost, crop cost and return data, and woodland suitability groups.

A new soil loss formula, a slide rule based on how land is used, will be added to the guide.

Attending the meeting with Fussell were William W. Nace, work unit conservationist; Jerry Daniel, soil conservationist and Cecil Kight, conservation engineer technician, all of Garrett County.

Paul Anderson, work unit conservationist, and John House, conservation engineer technician, represented Washington County, and Martin M. Gordon, work unit conservationist, John Hall, soil conservationist, Kenneth Stone, soil scientist and E. Stuart Delbrook, soil conservation technician, Allegany County.

The trip will include a visit to Buhl Planetarium, a ride on the Monongahela incline and a tour of Greater Pittsburgh Airport. Adult supervision will be provided.

Some Snow Melts; More Cold Ahead

More cold weather and a chance of some flurries have been predicted for this area today and tonight by the Weather Bureau.

Yesterday's bright sunshine in the morning helped melt some of Tuesday's snowfall, but the mercury hovered around the freezing mark all day. The unofficial high in downtown Cumberland yesterday was 32 degrees.

Today's forecast says temperatures will range in the 20s and increasing cloudiness will move into the area by afternoon.

The SRC lifted the emergency snow plan on highways in Allegany County yesterday afternoon, but the plan was still in effect in Garrett County last night.

Primary roads in Allegany County were 90 to 100 per cent bare yesterday, while secondary roads were 75 to 100 per cent bare. Road crews worked yesterday scattering chemicals and abrasives on the remaining bad spots.

In Garrett County, the SRC reported U. S. Route 40 was 90 per cent bare and Route 219 75 per cent bare. However, Route 50 was only 50 per cent bare. All secondary roads were about 25 per cent bare.

There were some light snow flurries in the Cumberland area last night and these were expected to continue throughout the night in higher elevations.

The long-range forecast calls for temperatures to average about 10 degrees below normal during the next several days.

State AFL-CIO Meeting Set

A number of Western Maryland labor leaders will attend a legislative conference planned in Baltimore Friday by the Maryland State and District of Columbia AFL-CIO.

The meeting will be held at 1:30 p. m. in the Retail Clerks building on Monument Street.

Representing the Building and Construction Trades Council here will be Harry L. Hickle, president; Charles L. Cross, Robert Weaver and Darrel D. Diehl.

Woodrow F. Strong, state president, said the meeting was called to acquaint labor leaders with the legislative program being promoted in Annapolis and to alert them to the problems facing the union movement.

Law Library Work Bids Being Sought

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners is seeking sealed proposals for resurfacing the floor in the Bar Library at the Court House.

Bids will be received by the board until 10 a.m. March 8, said James G. Stevenson, clerk. Work will include installation of carpet in the reading room, sub-floor and tile in the reception room and the librarian's room.

Mail Damaged By Fire In Storage Car

A fire in a mail storage car was discovered here yesterday morning as B & O Train No. 11 pulled into the Queen City Station. About half a dozen bags of mail were reported damaged by the flames.

East Side Fire Company was called to the station at 10:59 a.m. after the blaze was discovered.

Man Jailed For Buying Boys Liquor

The youths involved in the case, John Parrish, 18, Wiley Ford, and Edward Brinkman, 17, of 206 Springdale Street, also pleaded guilty to six different charges, but Magistrate Paul W. Barnett withheld sentence pending a check on their backgrounds.

Both Parrish and Brinkman were charged with three counts of petty larceny, two counts of malicious destruction of property, and with having alcoholic beverages in their possession.

Deputy State's Attorney Donald W. Mason presented the state's case yesterday afternoon in Trial Magistrate Court.

More Contracts Sought For ABL

Every avenue of possibility for securing additional work at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory is being explored in depth, U. S. Senator J. Glenn Beall yesterday assured city, county and state officials.

Senator Beall said, during the meeting held in the office of U.S. Senator Daniel Brewster, that no concrete program has been determined at this time.

During the meeting arranged by Thomas B. Finan, Maryland's attorney general, tthe state and federal leaders assured area representatives they would work up to the top level of the Defense Department in an effort to increase the ABL work force.

The possibility of securing NASA projects or other similar work was also discussed.

Cumberland was represented by Mayor Earl D. Chaney while the county was represented by Commissioner Robert Little Ebert. F. Patrick Allender was a union representative and J. E. Mullenax appeared on behalf of the Western Maryland Central Labor Council.

John M. Martin and D. H. Little represented the Hercules Powder Company. A Navy official was also in attendance.

Rep. Harley O. Staggers and Senator Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia also pledged their support of the program.

Senate Rejects Plan To Abolish Unit System

Switch In Votes Follows Appeal

By GEORGE BOWEN

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Maryland Senate refused Wednesday by a vote of 16-13 to abolish the state's 53-year-old practice of nominating candidates by a unit system.

Georgia is the only other state which had a similar primary setup. That has been held unconstitutional and the Supreme Court of the United States is weighing an appeal.

Two weeks ago, the vote was 20-9 in adopting a favorable committee report. Coming in the wake of a landslide 122-9 vote by which it passed the House of Delegates, the unit system appeared doomed.

Launch Attack

But some small county senators, notably Robert P. Dean, D-Queen Annes, launched an eloquent attack on passage and a switch of seven votes followed.

Maryland's unit vote is dependent upon representation in the legislature. The candidate with the highest popular vote is awarded the entire county unit vote equivalent to the number of its legislators.

"We are practically in the same position as last year when the courts ordered us to reapportion," argued Sen. James A. Pine, D-Balto county. "They will do it again on the unit vote if we don't put our own house in order."

Time Not Ripe

However, it was only a temporary act and the legislature still has to come up with a permanent reapportionment to be approved by the voters.

Sen. Harry R. Hughes, D-Caroline, argued that until this is done, it was premature to throw out the unit vote.

"How can we intelligently abolish it until the system on which it is based is permanently established?" he asked. He said the unit type of nominating candidates was not itself held unconstitutional in Georgia, only the apportionment on which it was based.

GOP Vote Split

Sen. John L. Sanford Jr., D-Worcester, started off the debate by making certain no votes might be influenced by the name of Gov. Tawes.

"There has been a lot of talk that this is an administration bill," Sanford said. "I want to clarify that.

"The governor was quoted yesterday that it is not. He said he is not publicly for it or against it."

There were 11 Democratic votes for the bill and the same number against it. Five of the seven Republican senators voted negative.

House Group Disagrees On Barber Bills

By GORDON BEARD

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee worked itself into a lather Wednesday over two bills affecting Maryland barbers.

By their questions, some committee members indicated strong objections to a bill which would allow the State Board of Barber Examiners to regulate the days and hours barber shops could operate.

The measure was introduced by Del. Dennis H. Marshall, D-Prince Georges, who worked 10 years as a barber.

Under the proposal, answers to a questionnaire sent all licensed barbers would determine the hours and days of operation. Exemptions would be provided so the restrictions would not interfere with an operator's religious tenets.

Del. Edwin Warfield III, D-Howard, questioned whether such regulations would violate civil rights.

The other bill was sponsored by Marshall and two other Democratic delegates, Raymond J. McDonough of Prince Georges and Edna P. Cook of Montgomery.

The measure would increase license fees for barbers, establish inspection fees for each new barber shop application, and an annual registration fee for each shop. It also would increase required student instruction from 900 to 1,200 hours.

The proposal also would prohibit any barber school or shop from displaying prices that can be read from outside the building.

Politics Clouds Legislative Pay Increase Issue

Annapolis Living Cost Study Set

By TOM SEPPY

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Baltimore politics cast a cloud Wednesday over the possibility of members of the General Assembly seeking an increase in their expense accounts.

The chairman of a House Ways and Means subcommittee reported that the attorney general's office believed an increase would be legal.

But Del. Orland B. Blades, D-Caroline, the subcommittee chairman, "if we do, Hyman Pressman will sue and really break up the election in Baltimore City."

Threatens Suit

Blades referred to the fact that Pressman, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for comptroller of Baltimore City, has said he will bring a taxpayer's suit if the members of the General Assembly attempt to raise their expense accounts from $20 to $30 a day. The Baltimore primary is set for March 6.

"I wouldn't do anything until after the election," Blades advised the Ways and Means Committee.

Blades said the informal opinion by the attorney general's office showed that per diem expense allowances were not allowed under law but that they have come about as part of tradition. He said, however, that any increase probably could not be retroactive to the beginning of the current session.

The five-member subcommittee was formed to study the high cost of living in Annapolis and to sound out senators on the subject, one on which most legislators are very sensitive.

Voters Turn Down

Del. Marvin Mandel, D-Balto 5th and chairman of the committee instructed Blades to meet again with members of the Senate and report back to the committee when the other house's feelings are learned.

Four years ago, an order was passed by the House raising the per diem expense payment to $30. Gov. Tawes, newly elected and fearing an adverse public reaction, had the order rescinded a few days after it was passed.

The voters turned down last November a proposed constitutional amendment which would have raised the annual salary of the legislators from $1,800 to $3,500.

Failure to get the pay increase prompted this year's consideration by legislators of possibly raising their expense allowances.

Foreign Pupil Could Attend Allegany High

A letter from Mrs. Walter E. Dych, president of the Cumberland Chapter of the American Field Service, was read at the meeting by Ralph R. Webster, secretary of the board.

He explained that the local chapter is hopeful of having a foreign exchange student come to Cumberland, live with a local family and attend classes at Allegany.

The board members voiced approval of the project, although they decided not to assume liability of the student while he is off the school property.

Tuition at the school would be provided, although $700 would have to be raised for other expenses on the part of the exchange student. The board members feel they should not be obligated in any way and the necessary funds should not be raised as a school project.

Linda Broadwater, secretary of the Student Council at Allegany, indicated in a letter to the board that support is being asked by the council, which is interested in having a foreign exchange student.

In other business transacted yesterday the members decided to allow Columbia Gas Company to use the Fort Hill High School auditorium when the Pittsburgh Symphony comes to Cumberland.

The Cumberland Choral Society requested the use of Allegany High School auditorium for a rehearsal on March 24 and Chief Justice Taney Assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, requested the use of Fort Hill's auditorium December 3 for a program by the Boys' Choir of Father Flanagan's Boys Town in Nebraska.

Summons By Mail Bill Introduced

A bill which would allow serving of civil summons by registered or certified mail in Allegany County has been introduced in the General Assembly.

It is House Bill 370 and is sponsored by the Allegany County Delegation. The procedure could be used only in suits for money judgements, and personal service would be made by constables if the summons cannot be delivered by mail.

Young GOP Club Elects Officers
